Threat of Third Coal Strike Growing

MINE OWNERS SAY PARLEY DEADLOCKED

Appeal To WLB To Intervene In Negotiations With Miners' Union.

NEW WALKOUT LOOMS

Lewis Threatens New Closing of Mines To Keep Owners In Conferences.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The war labor board today called a public hearing for tomorrow on the coal mine wage dispute to receive "such reports" as any party may care to submit.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The threat of a third coal strike grew more serious today as the mine owners appealed to the War Labor Board for a hearing on the deadlocked negotiations with the United Mine Workers over a new wage contract.

Both southern and northern operators were understood to have joined in a telegram to the WLB urging its intervention in the dispute and reporting that collective bargaining conferences with the UMW have "reached an impasse."

At the same time, John L. Lewis, UMW president, was reported to have threatened another walk-out by the 540,000 members of his union, if the WLB should again halt the negotiations with the operators. The present truce under which wage negotiations were resumed ends June 30.

Lewis was said to have voiced this threat during a futile round of conferences with the mine-owners which culminated in his denunciation of the "sullen, morose attitude" of the operators as "an insult to the coal miners and the national interests."

It was reported that the union chief also used the strike threat to deter the operators from temporarily calling off the negotiations while they reported progress of the "talks" to the WLB in conformance with its directive of May 25.

As a result, the mine owners agreed to resume the conversations with the UMW representatives at 10 a. m., this morning although during the past 48 hours the operators and miners

$630,000 County's War Bond Goal In June, Says Eliot

Nearly $300,000 more than its previous monthly quota for series E bond sales, the Richland county quota for June is $630,000, Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the county war savings staff, said today.

Eliot said the county has exceeded its goal for several months.

During May the total E bond sales amounted to $600,000, far above the $378,000 quota set for that month. During the first week of May $342,000 in E bonds were sold, more than half of the sales for the entire month.

Eliot said that he believed one of the reasons for this large sale during May was a continuation of the buying after the close of the second War Loan drive in April. He noted also that the payroll plan is now functioning well, but added that the purchase of additional bonds outside of the payroll buying accounted for much of the large sale.

Ernie Takes Little Trip --- 13,000 Miles

Ernie Pyle today begins the story of "a little trip" of 13,000 miles into the heart of Africa—a trip he made during a lull in Tunisia that preceded the final offensive.

When he returned to Tunisia after his long flight, action came so thick and fast that he had to hold up his story of the trip while he covered the fighting. But here it is at last—the first article appears today on editorial page.

Mansfielder, Bomber Ground Crew Chief, Helps Keep 'Luckiest Fortress In Europe' Always Ready to Go

A Mansfield soldier, presumed to be on his way home to visit his daughter whom he has not yet seen, was identified in Associated Press dispatches from England today as chief of a ground crew that has kept the "luckiest Fortress in the European theater of operations" in the air.

He is Master Sgt. Fabian F. Folmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Folmer, 176 South Diamond street, who has groomed the battle-scarred Flying Fortress, "Hell's Angels," for 28 operational missions over occupied Europe.

In a dispatch from a bomber station somewhere in England today, Leo Branham, Associated Press correspondent, said the entire crew of the bomber, with the exception of the co-pilot, having completed their operational missions were transferred yesterday to another station, presumably in preparation for their return to the United States.

The dispatch did not state specifically that the ground crew had been transferred, but it was assumed that the mechanics had accompanied the air crew since it is usual practice of the air force to keep both crews intact as units, and working with each other.

The Fortress, Branham wrote, is still going strong with only a few patched-up flak punctures and a lone bullet hole as battle scars from plowing through some of the thickest antiaircraft fire tossed up by such strongly-defended targets as Wilhelmshaven, Kiel, Bremen, Vamm, Vegesack, St. Nazaire, Lorient, Romill yand Paris.

"This is a record unequalled by any Fortress in the European theater," Branham wrote.

"In all, 150,000 pounds of bombs have

CONTEST LOOMS AS TICKETS FOR PRIMARY FILL UP

Race Appears In Republican Ranks as Shultz, Carter Eye Council Presidency.

Party tickets for Mansfield offices belatedly were beginning to take form today and it appeared that there may be some vacancies on both sides when the Friday night deadline for candidates' petitions comes around.

Howard Miller's announcement that he will not seek re-election as council president on the Democratic ticket brought at least three candidates into the field, including two Republicans who would wage what may be the only primary contest if both file for the nomination.

Charles N. Shultz, veteran councilman from the Second ward, was mentioned today as the probable GOP candidate for the council presidency while William W. Carter, one-time clerk of council, indicated he would file for the same post.

Democrats were counting on Glenn A. Davidson, former city treasurer, as their candidate for head of council.

The mayoralty picture was unchanged today with Atty. Glenn W. Marriott as the probable candidate on the Democratic ticket to oppose Mayor W. J. Locke in the fall. Marriott, former county prosecutor, still withheld announcement of his candidacy.

Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said his party would make no effort to find council candidates in the Democratic Fourth and Fifth wards, leaving Councilmen Michael Mihalick and Fred Miller unopposed next fall. Lack of candidates who might be able to defeat the

RUSH FOR GAS

Word of Pleasure Driving Ban Starts Buying Spurt.

Indications that the ban on pleasure driving may be extended to Ohio caused a mild rush on filling stations here last night by motorists fearing the ruling might become effective without advance warning.

Between 7 and 9 p. m., station attendants reported today, more than the usual amount of evening trade filled the stations. Cause for the rush appears to have originated with the belief that the value of gas coupons may be cut, attendants said.

In other parts of Ohio today rushes varying in volume were reported with the largest rush in Youngstown. Several filling stations there reported they ran out of gasoline last night as block-long lines of cars entered their station.

BING COLLECTS

Takes $298,000 From Sale of His Recordings.

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Crooner Bing Crosby received $298,946 in 1942 from Decca Records, incorporated, the recording company had reported to the securities and exchange commission today. This compares with $100,640 paid him in 1941.

Other Decca payments included: $79,302 to Jimmy Dorsey; $33,600 to Fred Waring; $32,781 to Guy Lombardo; Woody Herman, $32,066; Andrews Sisters, $48,306, and $21,111 to the Ink Spots.

CALLS BLACKOUT A FLOP

CINCINNATI —(U.P.)— State Defense Director Ralph H. Stone said today that Cincinnati's participation in last night's test blackout of 12 counties of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky was "very unsatisfactory" particularly in the downtown district."

Zoot Suiters Jailed In Los Angeles Riots

Dozens of zoot suit wearers find themselves in Los Angeles Central jail or a hospital, following a four-night "war" between service men — soldiers, sailors and marines — seeking vengeance for isolated attacks on service men and their wives by zoot suit-wearing hoodlums. Service men "task forces" of 10 to 100 raided bars and theaters allegedly frequented by members of the gang. Photo, upper left, shows two youthful zoot suiters brought to police headquarters for questioning. Upper right shows Mike Lopez —who lost his shirt, and more, during the rioting — taking things philosophically at Los Angeles Central jail.

CALLS CONTRACT 'NATION'S BEST'

Union Head Reveals Provisions of New Agreement With Rubber Company.

Desmond Walker, president of local 17, United Rubber Workers of America, today called the contract signed yesterday between the union and the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company "the best contract signed in the entire rubber industry."

Also lauding the working agreement was Claude Wisdom, Akron, the union's international representative who said in reference to the contract "I only wish industry as a whole would show such willingness to co-operate."

The agreement renewing the union's contract with the plant covers approximately 1,100 employes.

Principal changes are in the vacation set-up, Walker said.

The new contract provides that any employe will receive a week's vacation with pay after the completion of a calendar year of service and two weeks with pay at the completion of five calendar years of employment.

No vacations are provided for

Dump Fish Into Park Pools for Angler Contest

Fish in Mansfield's three park lakes are going to be wearing tags on their fins that will be worth prizes at the city's stores for boys and girls under 16.

CHANGE 'E' DATE

Westinghouse Ceremony To Be July 14 Instead of June 23.

Presentation of the Army-Navy "E" award to the Mansfield Electric and Manufacturing company which was originally scheduled for June 23 has been moved back to July 14, company officials said today.

Permission to delay the ceremonies for three weeks was granted the company by the War Department to allow the company additional time to make plans for the presentation.

J. G. Baird is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

W. J. Russell, Westinghouse Engineer, Takes Post In East

William J. Russell, manager of appliance engineering at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, will leave his post to become vice president of the Landers, Frary and Clark company at New Britain, Conn., it was learned today.

He assumes his new duties July 1, and will leave Mansfield about June 20.

In his new position, he will be associated with another former Mansfielder and former Westinghouse executive, Arthur E. Allen, who was vice president of the company in charge of the appliance division. Allen, who left Mansfield and the Westinghouse in 1938, is now chairman of the board of Landers, Frary and Clark.

SWAMP STORES TO BUY SHOES

Holders of Coupon 17 Hurry To Beat June 15 Deadline For Footwear.

With the deadline for using the first shoe coupon—No. 17—less than a week away, Mansfielders are rushing local dealers for all types of footwear.

All shoe merchants in Mansfield agree it's a "boom year" and although they had been warned by manufacturers that the last two weeks before the deadline would see a buying spree, they weren't exactly prepared for such a business.

Every day can be compared to a good Saturday buying, according to the shoes salesmen. One merchant said, "Never before in the history of shoe business has there been such a rush to buy shoes."

Another shoe store reported that their children's department sales were five times better than they'd ever known.

So far local dealers are able to supply the demand but what the

Traffic Expected To Use 30-N Grade Pavement July 1

Traffic will begin moving over the new U. S. route 30-N grade elimination project west of Mansfield by July 1 unless weather causes further delay in the construction work, Vance Grimes, Ashland division state highway engineer, predicted today.

The $497,000 project, which had been scheduled for completion last Nov. 30, will not be finished by July 1, however, for considerable grading and sodding will remain to be done after the paving is completed.

The Lombardo Brothers Construction company, contractors, had virtually completed the south lane of paving today and Grimes said the route should be ready for traffic in three weeks if the weather is good.

Workmen are on the east end of the project at the city limits now and are expected to finish

MEXICAN ENVOY REPORTS ZOOT SUITER RIOTS

Los Angeles Declared Out of Bounds For Sailors, Navy Nurse Injured.

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—An attempt to kill a policeman by runing him down with an automobile heightened the drive against young Negro and Mexican hoodlums clad in zoot suits today.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES — Rioting between service men and young Negro and Mexican hoodlums clad in zoot suits prompted the Mexican consulate today to send official reports of the disturbances to the Washington embassy and the foreign office at Mexico City.

Meanwhile, the navy issued a drastic order declaring the entire city of Los Angeles "out of bounds" to sailors, coastguardsmen and marines in the hope of ending fist fights, knifings and stonings which have raged for five days despite intensified police precautions. The army declared the east side of the city out of bounds to soldiers.

Mexican Consul Alfredo Calles, son of the former Mexican president, distributed circulars throughout the Mexican district last night advising all Mexican nationals to stay indoors after dark.

The text of the reports to Washington and Mexico City were not disclosed.

Three streetcars were stoned late last night. Several passengers were cut when windows of two interurban cars carrying sailors were smashed.

A gang of zoot suiters waylaid the cars en route to the harbor, hurling rocks through

NAZIS ESCAPE

Five Flee Prison Camp Area In Texas, FBI Joins Search.

CAMP HOOD, Tex.—(U.P.)—Five German military prisoners were at large in Texas today after their escape from the North Camp Hood internment area.

Military authorities enlisted the aid of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, state and local officers in the search for the men, all 21 or 22 years of age, who made their getaway by as yet undisclosed methods.

Camp officials informed the FBI that the men were missed during a routine morning checkup, and that they had escaped sometime after midnight. The men were wearing either blue pants and shirts, or old German military uniforms of an odd khaki color, resembling olive drab.

MAJOR, NOW

Marine Flying Ace Foss Gets Raise In Rank.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Promotion of Capt. Joseph Foss, America's fighter ace of World War II, to the rank of major in the marine corps was announced today by the navy.

The 28-year-old marine pilot from Sioux Falls, S. D., recently returned from Guadalcanal, where he was credited with shooting down 26 Japanese planes.

British Report Bridgehead on Road to Sicily

Axis Invasion Jitters Growing Hourly As Rome, Berlin Radios Predict Blows Against Coast of Europe In Five Places.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—A possibility that Allied troops have made a landing on Pantelleria and established the first bridgehead against Nazi-dominated Europe was reported by the authoritative British press association today.

This report was circulated by teleprinter to all British and American clients of the press association on the heels of an Italian radio broadcast asserting that an ultimatum to surrender had been dispatched to the Axis garrison on the island.

The ultimatum was due to expire at 6 p. m. British time, (12 noon EWT), and according to Rome, no reply had been sent out by Pantelleria up to two hours before the deadline.

The press association dispatch said:

"There is a possibility a landing has already been made on Pantelleria.

"Probably the garrison has been called upon to surrender to save the civil population from further attacks.

"If attacks have been launched, we may expect this will be the next stepping stone for operations against Sicily."

Pantelleria lies due northeast of the port of Sousse in Tunisia, about 90 miles from the Tunisian seacoast and an equal distance from the Sicilian port of Agrigento.

A rocky islet some 16 miles long and one-quarter that in width, Pantelleria long served as a submarine and motor torpedo boat base for the Axis, and formed an obstacle to uninterrupted passage of Allied shipping through the Sicilian straits.

In recent weeks, it has been the target of ceaseless attacks by heavy and light bombers operating from North African bases under Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle, and for the last few days also has been shelled by units of the Mediterranean battle fleet commanded by Admiral Sir Arthur Browne Cunningham.

Latest advices indicated the island had been virtually immobilized, with the coastal guns installed by Premier Mussolini as bastions to protect Sicily and the Italian mainland able to reply only weakly. Its few airfields, hewn laboriously out of solid rock, have been useless since the close of the Tunisian campaign.

Axis broadcasts meanwhile indicated a rising fear of invasion, with German and Italian radios reporting the possibility of simultaneous Allied blows against five points on the continent.

The Nazi-operated Paris radio, Rome's transmitter and stations in Stockholm and Berne, as well as cables from neutral points on the continent, poured out dispatches in which invasion fears of the Axis were plainly revealed.

Both the Paris and Berne transmitters quoted Berlin quarters as stating that simultaneous operations were expected on the coasts of Belgium, northern and southern France, Italy and in the Balkans.

The whole continent appeared to be suffering from the severest attack of invasion jitters to date as a result of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's promise yesterday that large-scale amphibious operations are approaching.

The premier's statement to the house of commons was underscored by the declaration of American Brig. Gen. Daniel Noce,

EXPECTANT: London Waiting Start of Mediterranean Push

(By United Press)

LONDON — The atmosphere of expectancy mounted steadily in London today as the opening of the Allied drive across the Mediterranean was awaited.

Prime Minister Churchill's address yesterday suggested what already was obvious—that the Allies are going to strike from more than one point along the 3,000-mile shoreline of Africa on which their troops are stationed for battle.

The Italians frantically are trying to cheer themselves with assertions that the initial island assault against Lampedusa has been repulsed.

North Africa is bristling with planes, men and ships ready for attacking Sicily while the whole tip of Tunisia has been transformed into an amphibious springboard. Farther east the Allies' intentions are cloaked in the deepest military secrecy but a report indicated that the forgotten Ninth and Tenth armies as well as American and French forces are ready to shove off against the Dodecanese Islands, Greek Archipelago and the Balkans.

Allied strength obviously is growing by massive strides. This reflects several factors:

1. Bleeding of Nazi military strength in Russia and Tunisia at a rate far greater than the German army can replace men, materials and planes.

2. Huge American production of war materials, which now are reaching all fronts in quantities vastly greater than six months ago.

3. The reversal in the battle of the Atlantic where, during the last six weeks, the Allies have been transforming the ocean into something resembling an Anglo-American lake.

In view of these factors it is not surprising that the Axis has PROTECTED: Allied Troops All Ready If Axis Uses Poison Gas

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A possibility that Allied troops might have to fight their way into Europe through poison gas was tempered today by assurances from the chemical warfare service that effective protective devices have been developed.

President Roosevelt said yesterday that evidence that the Axis was making "significant preparations" indicating an intention to use gas warfare was being reported "with increasing frequency from a variety of sources."

For the third time, he spoke of the possibility that the enemy would resort to what he called "such terrible and inhumane weapons," and he promised the Axis armies and peoples, in both Europe and Asia, that once they loose poison gas there will be "full and swift retaliation in kind."

This retaliation, he said, will fall upon munition centers, seaports, and other military objectives throughout the entire territory of the offending nations.

Use of gas "against any one of the United Nations will be regarded as having been committed against the United States itself and will be treated accordingly," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

The United States army has itself developed a stand-by production of poison gases. Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, chief of the chemical warfare service, said last May that if the enemy starts using war gases "we have plenty to give

OFFER LOW BIDS ON WATER AND STREET JOBS

Glasener Company Bid Lowest on Remodeling; Asphalt Firm Low on Streets.

Two Mansfield firms, the Glaesner Construction company and the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, were listed today as the low bidders on city projects calling for the remodeling of the North Main street pumping station and resurfacing of six streets.

Bids on the two jobs were opened by Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff. The contracts have not been let.

The Glasener company's bid on the pumping station job was $5,995. Other bidders were Friebel and Hartman, Shelby, $7,116, and Simon Small and Sons, Mansfield, $7,475.

Improvements at the station will include construction of a 22 by 40-foot warehouse, addition of a balcony to the station for housing meter testing equipment, widening of doors for trucks, and razing of an old brick stack.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company was the lone bidder on the big street job, submitting figures totaling $28,880 for the work, $1,646 below the estimated cost.

The firm's proposals for resurfacing six streets with T-35 bituminous material included these bids on the separate jobs:

Mulberry street from Park avenue west to First street, $3,580; Hedges street from East First street to Dale avenue, $8,313; McPherson street from Springmill to Howard streets, $3,660; East and West Third streets from Franklin avenue to Weldon avenue, $7,067, and West Second street between South Main and Mulberry streets, $2,262, and West First street from South Main to Mulberry street, $3,998.

URGE SUPPORT FOR PARK BILL

Sportsmen Approve Program To Build State Resorts on Lake Erie.

Richland countians were urged today to support the bill in the Ohio legislature to appropriate $400,000 to establish four new state parks, two on Lake Erie where they would be available to Mansfield and Richland county.

Gordon H. Ensminger, president of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association and member of the executive of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, appealed to city and county residents to call or wire their two representatives in the house and senate, urging passage of the bill.

"To do any good in behalf of the measure, it's important that persons interested in the parks contact Representative John L. Catlett and State Senator P. H. Rogers immediately," Ensminger said. The legislature is expected to complete its business Thursday.

Ensminger pointed out that the state has no park on Lake Erie and when boat enthusiasts and picnickers from the Mansfield area go to the lake, they must pay for the use of private grounds.

Under the parks plan, supported by the League of Ohio Sportsmen and other outdoor organizations, parks would be opened on the lake, one in southwestern Ohio, and another in the southeastern part of the state.

AN APPLE FOR EVE --

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER XXX

Larry slept soundly through the night, hardly changing his position. But Loveday, if she slept at all, lost consciousness only for brief intervals. Her mind milled ceaselessly upon the conversation she must have in the morning with Larry.

Toward morning she must have fallen asleep, for the alarm at half-past six awakened her as usual. Instantly full recollection rushed back; she silenced the clock instinctively, looked fearfully toward the neighboring bed. Larry did not awaken. He muttered an annoyed "Damn!" gathered the covers closed about him, hunched himself deeper into bed. Loveday dressed noiselessly—anything to defer the hour of encountering his anger—and slipped from the room.

With the children she allowed herself all the usual commotion. Chris presently ran downstairs. As Loveday set his long glass of chilled fruit juice before him he greeted her cheerfully.

"No excitements in the night? But I'd make pretty sure today, if I were you, where Harris is."

"No excitements," she agreed cheerfully, "but Larry's home."

"Larry is!"

"Yes. I didn't wake him because he told the girls he wanted to sleep." She managed a natural air as she poured the coffee.

"When'd he come in?"

"Last night sometime. I'm not sure when."

"He didn't send you a wire," Chris commented. It was almost as if he were criticizing Larry, and Loveday, too, for the omission. He was annoyed, though he tried not to show it; the atmosphere of the breakfast table changed.

Time went by; the clocks struck the half hour after eight; Chris said that he must go. Loveday tried for a protest, knew it to be unconvincing. And then of all pleasant and unexpected developments Hugh came into the dining room.

"Say Loveday, I'm operating at ten. But I had to tell you. I've found Delia Dillon!"

"Oh, you and your clues, Hugh! And does she know anything about Grandfather's money?" She could laugh aloud in sheer relief.

"I don't know; I've not seen her yet. She lives in Portland. Father Burke came to the hospital to see a fellow who's pretty sick. The minute he heard my name he spoke of Grandfather Gurney and the odd chance that I had found out who I was—he knew all about it, of course. It suddenly came to me that he might know Delia. So I asked him if he remembered a nice Irish maid my grandmother had, and he said at once that he remembered her perfectly; she had married and gone away. I said that she hadn't left any traces that we could follow, through the post office and all that, and he said that she had been afraid of some man here who had been worrying her—"

"Harris of course!"

"Harris. She'd sworn Father Burke into not telling anyone except a member of the family where she was, but he has her name and he telephoned it to me this morning. So I've written her in Portland."

"And Larry's here, Hugh," Loveday said as Chris appeared not to have heard. "Came in late last night."

"Larry, hey?" Hugh looked immensely pleased

"What's the news with him?" he asked.

"I don't know. He was terribly tired and he's still sound asleep. Going Chris?" The endless meal was over; Chris was on his feet; they all went with him to the door and down to the drive. Hugh got into his car and sped away; the children foraged among the shrubs and paths. Chris stood by his car looking down at the rough old driving gloves he was pulling on his hands, his face a thundercloud.

"What's the matter?" Loveday asked, her heart sinking.

"Everything," he answered with a brief glance.

"Not my fault," she said very low, hardly knowing what she said.

"Not your fault? Whose fault is it that you haven't had an understanding with Larry, that you haven't made this sort of thing impossible?" the man beside her demanded. "You know how I feel. You know how any man who loves a woman would feel to have him walk in here.

"Chris, Chris," she pleaded. "You must understand that nothing's settled yet—that after all, he's my husband."

"He isn't giving me much chance to forget it!" he added. "I'm sorry, Loveday, but what on earth am I to do? Joke and laugh over his coming back, breaking up all our plans? You told me that he left you in a fury, told you that you could get a divorce if you wanted one. I tell you, Loveday, you've let one of us down, him or me!"

"I did tell him you and I cared for each other," Loveday protested, her cheeks flaming, "but how could I say that while I was married to one man I was planning to marry another?"

"Why couldn't you? Isn't it done every day? I'm sorry," he broke off to say sulkily. "I'll write you; I'll see you; I'm all upset. I'm crazy, I guess. But I happen to love you. "Will you please make things definite today, have an understanding with him, let me know where I stand?"

Then Chris drove off. She went back into the house and presently she heard a sound from Larry that was half a shout and half a moan and entering her own room with a fast-breaking heart, saw that he had rolled over on his back and was staring sleepily toward the door.

"Hello, Loveday!" he said easily. "Lord, I can feel it's late! What time is it?"

It couldn't be that he was going to be good-natured? That there need not be a scene?

"It's only a little after ten. Go back to sleep if you want to; Annie Lum's keeping the coffee hot."

"Oh no," Larry said on a long yawn. "I'll get up."

"When did you get home, Larry? What brings you and how long can you stay?"

"Same old story. Pick up another bomber and take it back."

"Back to where? Toronto?"

"Nope. I'm in our service now. Transferred with a hell of a lot of red tape! Commissioned as an ensign in our aviation corps."

"Oh, and are you glad?"

"You bet your life I'm glad. I've been down in Pensacola right where I started. Only," Larry said with a little touch of grim significance, of relish, "things are different now!"

"You mean you really are a flier now, a good one, and they know it?" Loveday supplied eagerly.

"I always knew I was," he said simply.

"And you're on your way—where?"

"To Norfolk. That is, unless there are other instructions waiting for me at San Diego."

* * *

Presently, dressed and downstairs at breakfast, he began to talk of his work and of the men with whom he was associating. Loveday waited on him, sat opposite him at the table, and listened. This was his world now—a world that talked of airports, types of ships, Lockheeds and Douglasses; he was absorbed in it. He told her of plans and ambitions she was entirely unable to estimate, of personalities of whom she got but shadowy impressions, of jokes that to her were not funny, though she smiled appreciatively and sympathetically as she heard them.

"You'll stay in the United States, though, Larry?"

"Well, I don't know. Nobody knows anything. We expected a pilot—friend of mine—named McNally, to go back with us the last time, but he went on."

"Went on where?"

"We don't know—all very hush-hush."

"Might they send you away?"

"Well, su-u-ure, they might. He was enjoying his breakfast; he spoke of the coffee, the corn bread.

"Your daughters and son gathered the eggs no later than yesterday; Owen carried a brown egg all the way home from the windmill." She supplemented his comments.

"I'll bet they're a handful!" he said amusedly. "Have much trouble with them?"

"Oh no, but they're lively."

"It's a full-time job," he said musingly, "but this is a swell place for them to be." She refilled his cup, and he doubled a wedge of corn bread over a lump of butter and put it into his mouth.

"I didn't hear you come in. What time did you get here last night?" It was asked at last.

"'Bout—I don't know—half-past nine maybe. You and Chris St. George were sitting in there by the fire. But I was too dog-tired to bother with him—his kind of talk kind of makes me sick, anyway—so I beat it up to bed. What does he do, stop here every time he goes up to the city?"

No suspicion, no jealousy, no resentment! She felt as if a shower of cold water had fallen over her; she caught her breath.

"He's staying at Del Monte now; they're making a picture at Pebble Beach."

"You kind of like his line, don't you?" Larry asked in mild curiosity. Loveday, with a keen recollection of his last visit at home, when she had actually proposed to him that she get a divorce to marry Chris, looked at him in stupefaction. He had bitterly implied that the easiest way out of the mess was for him to get himself killed as quickly as possible. But today he was apparently unconscious of anything irregular. He finished his breakfast with a great sigh of satisfaction, observed that there was no food like home food and that she must have cooked the eggs herself because they tasted different from any others, and walked out to the terrace, breathing complete satisfaction in every aspect of his being. "Lord, I love a morning like this," he said, looking up at the windy sky, "but I don't know about the planes. I'd better telephone the airport."

Brenda—Will You Step Out With Me Tonight?

I know I've been an awful grouch not taking you any place lately. But after standing all day at my new job, my feet darn near killed me with callouses and burning. Now I've reformed—or rather my feet have—thanks to the Ice-Mint you advised. Never tried anything that seemed to draw the pain and fire right out so fast—and the way it helps soften callouses is nobody's business! Been able to get some extra overtime money—so what do you say, let's go dancing tonight. You can step on my Ice-Mint feet all you want.

CADET WRITES BROADWAY PLAY

MAXWELL FIELD, Ala. (AN) — Howard D. Richardson, 25, of Black Mountain, N. C., is lookin. forward to writing both war and stage history.

Winner of the Maxwell Anderson contest for the best play written in verse, he is taking preflight pilot training at Maxwell Field. His play, "Night Song," will be produced on Broadway in the fall by Jose Ferrar, who will co-star with his wife in the play. Douglas Moore, who wrote the score for the dramatic version of "The Devil and Daniel Webster," is composing the music. Robert Edmond Jones is designing the sets and Eugene Loring is handling the choreography.

The play is based on the North Carolina version of the Barbara Allen legend.

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

LONDON—(By Wireless)—It is amazing that after all England has suffered, the constant casualty lists, the constant visible reminders of destructions from the German air attack, there could be any question here about giving Germany and Italy the works from the air. This incredible controversy reaches a peak just at a time when England is noting the third anniversary of her life after Dunkirk.

Clapper

The question was up in commons a few days ago when Richard Stokes called attention to what he said was an ever growing volume of opinion in England which considered the indiscriminate bombing of civilian centers both morally wrong and strategically crazy. Over the weekend this was followed up by the Bishop of Litchfield, Dr. E. S Woods, who is one of the best-known clergymen in England. In an address to his diocesan conference he declared that to bomb Rome would be a crime against civilization and a betrayal of the very things for which England is fighting. He added that any military advantage we might gain would be more than offset by the moral damage to the Allied cause in the eyes of the world.

Such debate among England's shattered monuments to the Nazi terror from the air seems fantastic except for the fact that England continues to have free speech—the Hyde park soapboxers still harangue crowds every Sunday—and that England prides herself on her traditional sportsmanship, never hitting anybody when he is down. In fact, one newspaper carries a long article explaining that the enemy is trying to capitalize on that British trait to prolong the war. The British public is urged to remember that the bombing of Germany will shorten the war and thus save lives.

Just before I left Sweden the Nazis issued a long official list of Allied damage to ancient German churches, German libraries, art museums and other cultural monuments, evidently playing on this sentimental streak in the Allies.

But the British public, as well as the American, need only remember what Hitler did to Warsaw, Rotterdam, Coventry and Plymouth, as well as London, after announcing that the Luftwaffe would erase Allies cities. Neither was Mussolini showing any chicken heart about the brutal methods of war, and if he did less damage than the Nazis it was only because he was not strong enough to do more.

I cannot imagine that the British or the American government will listen to any sentimental appeals to go easy on the Nazis or Italy in the air war. Yet Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express thought it advisable to run a hard-hitting editorial denouncing as humbugs those who say that mercy must temper justice, that vengeance belongs only to God, that the destruction of dams and the release of floods is not clean warfare, that we must not sink to the level of the Germans. The Express warns that as the doom of Germany becomes more certain such voices may grow louder and may well have a sinister inspiration.

The government shows no disposition to yield to any pleas to go easy. The American air effort is steadily increasing. The two air forces are following the prescription of round-the-clock bombing. This, plus ground and naval action, will be intensified until the total destruction of Axis power is accomplished.

We never heard any arguments against the all-out blitz from the Axis people when they had the initiative. The fact that there could be such discussion on the Allied side is undoubtedly a credit to Anglo-Saxon instincts, but it would be a reflection on Allied intelligence if it were allowed to deter the delivery of every possible ounce of force on the breeding ground of this war.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

DENVER—John L. Lewis is said to have struck against the government of the United States. That is a false and timorous estimate of the case by editorialists afraid to face the truth and a deliberate lie by New Deal politicians who know better.

Lewis did not strike. In accordance with the New Deal party's union laws, court decisions and teaching, he simply refused to work without a contract. In any normal case of similar facts and equal merit, between a union and an employer in private enterprise Lewis would have been upheld. The government would have encouraged him, even to rioting.

Pegler

It is set forth that the government was the employer in this case.

The government was not the employer. The government did, however, resort to another of the clever little schemes, having the color of legality, which the rule of chicanery has substituted for honest dealing.

The mines still belong to their original owners. The government seized them for no reason that could legitimately justify their seizure. The government took them over only as a raw and flagrant subterfuge to place itself in the technical but illegal status of employer of the miners.

Does anyone have the effrontery to say that by this act of seizure the government became the owner of the mines? That would be confiscation and on that precedent the government could confiscate all the property in the United States merely by conspiring with union bosses to refuse to work those properties without contracts or to strike in violation of contracts.

Not being the owner of the properties, the government therefore was not and is not the employer and the miners have not struck against the government for they have not struck at all. Nor have they even refused to work for the government, for the government is not in any honest way their employer and the miners know it.

But, if it should come to that, why shouldn't Lewis and the miners strike against the government? Hasn't Lewis been encouraged, time and again, by the New Deal party to strike, riot and pillage against the lawful established government, the public authority and the peace and security of the United States?

John L. Lewis once was president of the CIO. Has everyone forgotten that hour in the organization strike of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee when 40,000 of his coal miners threatened to march into a Pennsylvania city where there was no dispute between employes and employer but only a fight between predatory CIO unioneers and the workers and Lewis uttered the pious hope that surely some authority in the United States could avert the impending bloodshed?

The unorganized steel workers had made no threats. Who, then, was going to shed the blood? Have we forgotten what the civil disorder known as the organization strike was? If so, be it remembered that the organization strike was organized terror, sanctioned by the New Deal government, in which murderous rioters, vandals, and openly anti-American revolutionaries crossed state lines by concerted action to slay, slug and threaten free workmen and intimidate their women and children, and to smash and shatter property owned by unoffending citizens so that workers who declined to join the unions of John L. Lewis would be forced in on or die by violence or starvation.

The CIO in those days ran organization strikes in many American communities. In one city in Michigan a band of imported terrorists pulled the master switches of the municipal power plant, shutting off all current even to hospitals, and then went into hiding so that their frightened subjects, employed in the plant, and the city authorities, who personified orderly American government, could not find them to entreat them to rescind their decree. The governor of Michigan, Frank Murphy, whom President Roosevelt, in reward for his delinquency, elevated to the supreme court of the United States, submitted to this and other acts of organized violent rebellion against the government which he had sworn to uphold.

Those were the days, those were the occasions, when the New Deal party of President Roosevelt, directly represented by Frank Murphy as a New Deal governor, gave John L. Lewis tacit permission to ride down lawful government.

So even if we concede today, as nobody must, that his refusal to work the mines without a contract was a strike against the nation, who was it who taught him that lawful government in the U. S. A. is inferior to his own will, however violent and dangerous to the country?

OHIO ASSEMBLY EXPECTED TO CLEAR DOCKET

Brief Meeting on Finances, Schools Likely To End Session Tomorrow.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The presiding officers of the house and senate predicted today that the Ohio legislature, which has been in recess since May 29, will finish up its working sessions for the year in a few hours when it reconvenes tomorrow.

The legislature had been scheduled to wind up its work on May 29, but failed to reach agreement on four major issues. They are the $369,000,000 general appropriations bill, the sundry claims bill, the Whittemore measure to assess a surtax against war-expanded industries to build up a post-war cushion for unemployment benefits, and the $1,500,000 school rehabilitation bill.

Three of the measures still are locked in conference committees, but are expected to result in agreements today. The other bill, the school rehabilitation measure, has been agreed upon in conference, with the senate accepting the conference report on the last previous working day, but the house still has to concur.

With conference committees working today, leaders predicted that the working session could end in a few hours of a single session although the presiding officers would have to come back later to sign the bills after they are passed and returned by the printer.

The appropriations bill was considered to be the biggest snag, although conferees reported they hoped to draft a final report today. The senate added about $2,500,000 to the measure as passed by the house.

The conferees have struck from the bill a $400,000 senate addition to buy additional state park lands, but have retained a similar amount to buy the old Ford building in Columbus, now being used for BUC headquarters. Since the federal government has taken over unemployment compensation, the federal rental of $50,000 annually will pay for the building in eight years, excluding interest.

Only remaining item to be settled is the amount to include in the bill to pay school foundation payments. Under the school foundation program passed by the legislature, both flat payments per pupil and the regular foundation payments have been increased, but the exact amount necessary to meet the increases has not been determined.

TOLD OF DEATH

Relatives Here Learn of Demise of Mrs. Mary Miller..

Mrs. Mary E. Miller, 76, oldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William S. Cappeller, of Mansfield, died Tuesday night at her home in Cincinnati, according to a message received by her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. G. Cappeller, 111 Sherman avenue.

Mrs. Miller was born in Cincinnati in 1867 and was married to Charles E. Miller before the family moved to Mansfield. Her home was in the Cincinnati vicinity during her entire lifetime, although she became well known in Mansfield as a result of frequent visits here while her father was publisher of The News.

She is survived by her husband, one brother, Edward B. Cappeller, of Hollywood, Calif; and two sisters, Mrs. W. Burr Gongwer, of Cleveland; and Mrs. C. C. Doran, of California.

CIVILIANS GET ONE IN FIVE

80 Per Cent of Medical Grads Needed For Military, Says AMA President.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Only 20 per cent of the medical graduates each year can now be spared for care of civilians. The others will go into the military medical corps as long as the war lasts.

This prospect was sketched to the house of delegates of the American Medical association here last night by Dr. James E. Paullin, of Atlanta, the association's new president.

The yearly total of new civilian physicians he estimated at about 1,200. To this he added about 600 who are being retired each year from military service. Against this the doctors who are left, mostly men over 45, are dying at the rate of 2,500 a year.

This leaves a deficit of about 700 a year. To meet this, and the big shortage due to nearly half the active doctors already in military service, Dr. Paullin said plans should be made now for better use of the older physicians who have not been very active in medical practice.

It is the hope of organized medicine to have one doctor for each 1,500 persons in the United States. This compares with an average of 2 to 4 per thousand in many areas, and is much better than some rural communities which have seldom or ever had more than one doctor for 2,500 to 3,000 persons.

An eight-year-old North Mulberry street girl, sent home last night by her mother who was shopping downtown, got into the right house but the wrong room, thereby starting a search which required the help of police. The worried mother told officers late in the evening that her daughter had started for home at 5 p. m. and failed to arrive. She said she had searched the community but found no trace of the child. When police began questioning occupants of another part of the house, they found the "missing" girl safely asleep in the wrong apartment.

OFFERS FARM LABOR PROGRAM

Bromfield Urges Workers In Defense Plants To Enter Fields Part-Time.

Before a meeting of the agricultural committee of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce last night, Louis Bromfield, author-farmer, outlined his plan for alleviating the farm labor shortage in Richland county.

Bromfield's idea is to appeal to men now engaged in defense work to give two or three hours a day to helping the farmers [illegible] busy season. He noted that unless some plan can [illegible] to get some help for the county farmers they will not be able to get their crops in from the fields.

Following Bromfield's talk plans were made to enlarge the committee to make it more representative of the whole county.

Invitations will be sent to a number of organizations asking them to be present at the next meeting Monday, June 14, when a program as suggested by Bromfield will be set up for operation.

U. S. PLANNING VAST NEW HELP FOR RUSSIANS

Billion Dollars Worth of Food, Munitions Expected To Be Sent to U. S. S. R.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The United States government today is understood to be working on a new protocol agreemnet to provide Russia with hundreds of millions of dollars worth of American lend-lease aid during the coming 12 months.

Detailed plans are being made to supply Russia with monthly shipments of planes, guns, munitions, food and other military equipment in order to help that country fight on another year if Germany is not defeated in the meantime.

The new agreement will represent an extension of an existing protocol that expires June 30.

The Soviet government already has submitted to the United States a list of its requirements for the coming 12 months. This list is now being studied by the lend-lease administration and the military authorities with a view to determining the allocation of supplies to Russia.

The new protocol will call for specific monthly shipments of raw materials and food as well as military equipment.

While no definite limit is set on the value of the aid to be extended to Russia during the next 12 months it is believed that it may reach in the neighborhood of a billion dollars.

The value of lend-lease aid already supplied the Soviet Union up to March 1, 1943, totaled $1,826,000,000. This aid included more than 2,600 planes, 3,200 tanks, and 72,500 trucks.

It also included more than 130,000 sub-machine guns, more than 98,000,000 pounds of TNT and toluol, more than 188,000,000 pounds of copper and brass, and almost 3,000,000 pairs of army boots.

Two-thirds of all supplies sent to Russia from this country have been transported in American ships. Some of the supplies are shipped aboard Soviet vessels across the Pacific and through the sea of Japan to Vladivostock. The Japanese permit these shipments under the neutrality pact with Russia.

In return for American aid, the Soviet government is pledged under this agreement to "contribute to the defense of the United States of America," and to "provide such articles, services, facilities or information as it may be in a position to supply."

It would seem that people who do not know what they are talking about would stop spreading stories about this boy and that being killed, wounded or captured, and would be content to wait for official word before believing news that certainly can't be welcome or cheering.

The Ed Henrich story is a case in point. Ever since the Yanks landed in Africa, the story has been going around Mansfield that Big Ed, former softball star and brother of the Yankees' Tom Henrich, had been killed in action. When the story first started, Ed was still in the United States.

But the story persists, simply because Ed does not write to anyone in Mansfield. So every now and then Harold Aston writes to Ed's mother in Massillon and asks how Ed is coming along, and gets the word back that Ed is coming along fine.

Johnny Fike, Y. M. C. A. physical director, heard that Tommy Moxley, former baseball and softball star, had been killed in North Africa, and was much interested in running down the report as Tom had coached some championship Mayflower teams in the "Y" Church basketball league

He asked some Westinghouse men about it the first chance he got.

"Tom was all right the last time we heard from him," was their reply.

* * *

"And when did you hear from him last?" Fike asked.

"Just yesterday," was the response.

I was playing golf the other day with Frank Jocha and Ray Malaska, when Jocha said to Malaska:

"Some guy tried to tell me yesterday that your brother and mine were captured in Africa, and were recaptured when the Germans were knocked out.

"You'd think," says Jocha, "we'd hear about it, if it were true."

And just two days before that conversation "Frenchy" Downard told me he'd just gotten a letter from former News-Journal A-league golfer Vin Malaska in Tunisia in which he said: "We have an awful lot of junk to repair over here before we move on."

Doesn't sound as though he'd been captured.

Bill Snowden, center of the Mansfield high school football team of last fall, reports today at Fort Thomas, Ky., for service in the Army Air Force From there he goes to Keesler Field, Miss.

"Skip" enlisted way last March, and has been just a little bit embarrassed by the delayed call to service. He quit school at the time, but was still around for graduation last Friday, admitting he felt like walking up backward for his diploma.

He got his orders to report for duty on Saturday, the day after commencement.

Pirates Lose Two Players to Army

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—The Pittsburgh Pirates still staggering from the shock of losing Johnny Lanning to the army, suffered another setback today when Rookie Pitcher Jack Hallett was summoned for a physical examination June 17.

Lanning will be inducted June 21 and Hallett may leave in about two weeks.

* * *

Hallett, a native of Toledo, O., came to Pittsburgh from Toronto last season. At six feet, four inches, he is the tallest member of the squad.

HEADED FOR ARMY

GENEVA—(AP)—Anton Christoforidis, former National Boxing association light heavyweight champion, has been ordered to report for induction into the armed forces June 18.

Buzz Borries, Navy's All-America halfback of a few years ago, downed two Jap zeros in his first five minutes of flying in the South Pacific. He instructs now at Pensacola air base.

Eddie Turchin, Cleveland Indians' rookie, speaks and understands six languages.

Gene Desautels, Cleveland catcher, went to the big leagues direct from Holy Cross.

Count Fleet, in two races, earned slightly more than $100,000 for four minutes of running.

Indians Attempt Recovery

Drop From First Place To Sixth on Road Trip.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ONE of the questions to be taken up for settlement as the major leagues swing back into action today is whether the Cleveland Indians can become contenders in the American League again now that they are back on their own reservation.

* * *

The Indians never have been much of a threat while travelling and their recent invasion of the east was particularly disastrous.

They had moved into first place on May 23 to climax a successful home stand and then they proceeded to lose 11 out of 16 games on the road to tumble into sixth place. It was the biggest fall any of the major league clubs took in the recent intersectional competition.

Now the schedule is going to slope in favor of the Tribe. Of the next 36 games for the Indians, 27 of them will be played in Cleveland.

The Indians are not trusting entirely in this, however, for they have reached into the minor leagues in the last few days in an effort to strengthen the club—getting First Baseman Mike Rocco from Buffalo for Otto Denning and Rookie Eddie Turchin and buying Outfielder Pat Seerey from Wilkes-Barre for reserve duty The latter move was necessary by an injury to Hank Edwards.

Cleveland's first series at home will be five games with the staggering St. Louis Browns. Jimmy Bagby was booked to pitch for the Indians.

* * *

Besides St. Louis at Cleveland, today's resumption of activities in the majors calls for Chicago at Detroit in a twilight affair and Washington at Boston in the American League as well as Boston at Brooklyn (twilight), Philadelphia at New York and Pittsburgh at St Louis in the National League.

ROOKIE SLUGS

CAMP ATTERBURY Ind.—(AP)—The first time Cincinnati Manager Bill McKechnie got a look at his new rookie outfielder, Dain Clay, obtained Sunday from the Phillies, the kid got himself a home run.

This was the second inning of an exhibition game yesterday between the Reds and Camp Atterbury, which the Reds won handily, 12 to 6.

* * *

The next time McKechnie sizes the kid up, he's in there swinging again—this time a double. Later on in the game, Clay bangs out another double to get "four for three" for his day's plate work.

McKechnie is going to scrutinize the young centerfielder's efforts in today's exhibition contest with Fort Benjamin Harrison and tomorrow's sideshow with Great Lakes' naval training center team.

And if what he sees today and tomorrow, looks anything like what he saw yesterday, it's quite possible the Reds may have a new regular centerfielder.

Missouri Gets Favorite Role

Flying Tigers Liked In College Track Meet.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS)—On the basis of past performances, the "Flying Tigers" from the University of Missouri today were favored to win the 22nd annual N. C. A. A. track and field meet coming off at Northwestern university Friday and Saturday.

The fight for second place shaped up as a close five-team contest among Illinois, Minnesota, Rice Oklahoma Aggies and California.

Missouri's chances of capturing the team title, in a field that includes 150 athletes representing 37 colleges and universities, rested on a five-man squad, the same boys who captured the Big Six conference championship.

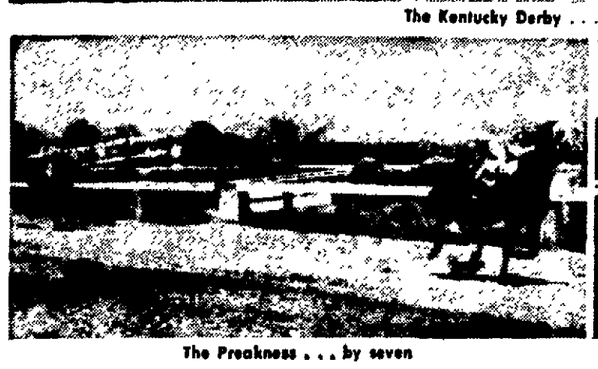
The Tigers will go into battle about like this: three crack sprinters in the 100-yard dash, Owen Joeggerst, John Tracy and Joe Shy, with Joeggerst and Tracy doubling in the 220-yard dash and Shy in either the 220 or low hurdles; a good combination high and low hurdler, Maurice Alexander, and a tricd and true star in the shot put, Elmer Aussieker.

As for the individual events, the records favor Hal Davis, the University of California speed merchant, as the only sure thing, and this in the 220-yard dash. Davis will be defending both his titles in the 100 and 220 races, but he's likely to run up against stiff opposition in the shorter event.

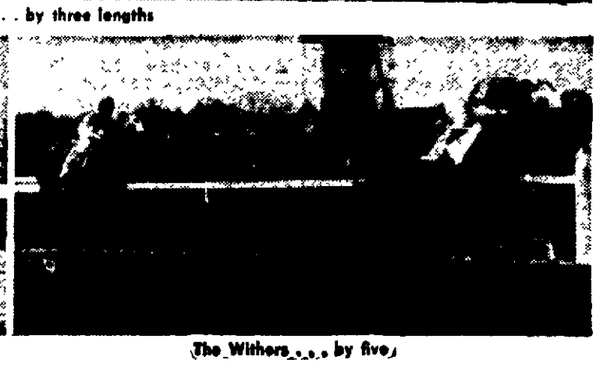
The 100-yard dash has a wide assortment of class. Davis has covered it in 09.5, one tenth of a [illegible] or a short grunt, off the world's and national college record But his time has been matched by Joeggerst and Shy of Missouri and J. W. Pettit of the Navy, and they'll all be out there Saturday.

Okay, Count 'Em Yourself, if You Don't Believe Us!

The Kentucky Derby . . . by three lengths



The Preakness . . . by seven



The Withers . . . by five

The Belmont . . . by 30!

One thing about Count Fleet, he's improving. When he started out this year he won his races by only a few lengths. But now, he's really stepping out. In the Belmont, the three-year-old Mrs. John D. Hertz colt rambled along until he was 30 lengths in front at the finish. The next big event on the Count's schedule is the Arlington Classic in Chicago. It's next month.

Dimouts Hurt Fight Shows

Pep-Bartolo Bout In Boston Loses Money.

By JACK CUDDY

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Wartime dimouts and transportation restrictions landed a knockout punch last night on outdoor boxing on the Atlantic seaboard for the duration.

Authorities for the statement are the promoters Eddie Mack and John O'Brien, who lost at least $5,000 last night on the featherweight title tilt between Willie Pep and Sal Bartolo.

The bout, expected to draw a New England record of 30,000 fans and a gate of more than $75,000 played to only 14,000 persons and a losing gross gate of $46,984. Mack and O'Brien took the fight from Mike Jacobs of New York by guaranteeing Pep $30,000 and by offering challenger Bartolo a sizeable slice of the net gate.

But Jacobs must be snickering in his sleeve today as Mack and O'Brien total their losses Despite reports Jacobs made a last-minute effort to keep the bout in New York by offering Pep a guarantee of $40,000 we can tell you that Mike Jacobs—who once learned a costly lesson—never offers guarantees to anyone

Mack and O'Brien made their $30,000 guarantee to Pep without appreciating fully how the war would affect their match They forgot that dimout regulations would force them to put on the match as a twilight show—starting the preliminaries at 7 15 p. m. (EWT) and trotting out the main event at 8.30 p m—instead of the usual 10 00 p. m.

Moreover, the promoters could not anticipate more drastic transportation restrictions involved since the match was made—restrictions that kept hundreds of fans away.

* * *

O'Brien says, "It was the dimout that actually fixed us up People just won't—or can't—come to a twilight show Believe me! Promoters in cities of the Atlantic seaboard—including New York—who attempt to stage outdoor summer boxing shows that conform to dimout regulations must put their shows indoors or lose money."

We wonder how this conclusion will affect Mike Jacobs' plans to stage big out-door shows in New York this summer.

PLAN MEMORIAL

CHICAGO—(INS)—A memorial to Ensign Nile C. Kinnick, Hawkeye football star of 1939 who was reported lost at sea from his airplane carrier, was planned today by the University of Iowa Alumni club of Chicago.

Don Cameron, trainer of Count Fleet, was offered the most talked-about colt of the season for nothing when it was just a youngster. Cameron didn't think it was worth the feed bills!

The Beau Jack-Bob Montgomery bout was the 35th championship fight Mike Jacobs has promoted in Madison Square Garden.

Sport Roundup

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Don't know who rounded up the bidders for that war bond auction of baseball players yesterday, but there was so much Brooklyn money in the place that the buyers from across the river were even bidding for Giants before the finish . . . When they put the first bunch of Horace Stoneham's hired hands on the block, though, a gent arose and solemnly announced, "The Brooklyn Junior Chamber of Commerce bids 25 cents for the entire Giant team." . . . And the first time someone offered a million for a player, the non-buying spectators at one table emptied their pockets and found they had less than ten bucks among them . . . Elsie the Cow bought Bobo Newsom, for $3,375,000 and the company publicity man promptly sent him a wire. Birds Finally Break Slump

Indianapolis Halts Brewers Win Streak.

(By Associated Press)

Three losing streaks came to an end in the American association last night.

The Columbus Red Birds defeated St. Paul 7 to 1 for the Birds' first triumph in their last five starts. The Toledo Mudhens thumped Minneapolis 11 to 3 to interrupt a three-game string of defeats, and Indianapolis, which had lost three straight, bumped the Milwaukee Brewers 5 to 2 to widen the Indians' league lead.

The Indians' triumph also shattered a five-game winning splurge that had carried the Brewers into second place in the loop standings.

Stellar pitching helped Columbus shake off its losing habit while heavy stickwork provided the answer for the Mudhens. Pitcher Jack Creel of the Red Birds turned in a six-hit job as the Ohioans copped their first game of the series from the Saints. Toledo's Phil Weintraub whammed out a home run, double and single to drive in five runs and start the Mudhens off right again

The Kansas City Blues won a 15-inning contest from Louisville, 8 to 7, and left last place in the standings to their beaten rivals.

Women's Western Honors Services

CHICAGO—(INS)—The 14th annual open championship of the Women's Western Golf association will be conducted as a "salute to victory tournament" in tribute to women in the four branches of the armed service, it was announced today.

* * *

Play is scheduled for Monday, June 28, through Friday, July 2, at the Glen Oak Country club, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Such top-flight women golf stars as Mrs. Elizabeth Hicks, Patty Berg, and Dorothy Kirby have entered.

* * *

On the morning of June 26, there will be a colorful dedication ceremony, attended by an honor guard of WACCS, WAVES, Marines and SPARS, and an honor foursome to be representative of each of these groups, will tee off to open the tournament.

WARMERDAM SHOOTS FOR FOURTH TITLE

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Ensign Cornelius Warmerdam, only pole vaulter ever to clear 15 feet, will shoot for his fourth consecutive triumph at the national A. A. U. track and field championships here June 19 and 20.

Stationed at Del Monte, Calif., Warmerdam obtained permission to compete in the event he has won four times in five years.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON—Willie Pep 126, Hartford, Conn outpointed Sal Bartolo, 125½, Boston (15) (title).

CLEVELAND—Jimmy Bivins, 174, Cleveland, knocked out Lloyd Marshall, 164, Los Angeles (13); Lulu Costantino, 130 New York, knocked out Joey Pironne, 133, Cleveland (9).

Picks Angott Over Henry

Sammy's Youth Liked Over Armstrong Age.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Run down the list of boxers in the smaller divisions actvie during the last few years and almost invariably the records will show that each of them met (and probably lost to) Sammy Angott somewhere along the line. He has tangled with eight champions or exchampions of one size or another, yet no man in his own lightweight class has beaten him in something like four years. Finally all this has begun to soak in around here and the price on his fight Friday night with the venerable Henry Armstrong is 6 to 5 and take your pick.

I pick Angott.

The little guy out of Washington, Pa., is as strong as Armstrong, younger and less shop-worn, and harder to fight than any man the former triple-crown wearer has met on his current comeback. He broke a string of straight victories, for Willie Pep when they tangled recently on Angott's first start on his own comeback, and he was fresh and full of go at the finish against a younger, zippier opponent.

Armstrong might be a little tougher than Pep, because he is bigger and heavier, especially in his big shoulders, but he probably will get yanked around and confused about as much as any other man who has faced the octopus-like little Italian.

In his prime Armstrong could have made a different story of this, no doubt. The Armstrong of the Petey Sarron knockout for the feather title, the Lew Ambers victory for the lightweight crown and the Barney Ross massacre for the welter championship, was a whale of man, and stayed that way through an almost unbelievable streak of knockouts and decisions over all the best. He almost won the middleweight title, too, from Ceferino Garcia.

That, of course, wasn't and isn't the Armstrong of today.

This conceivably will be the last around here for Armstrong—if he is beaten. Beau Jack gave him his lumps and he wouldn't have much to sell trying to comeback off of still another defeat.

A loss by Angott would just about finish him and his comeback as well. The spectre of the trail's end hangs over both of them insofar as the big money is concerned and leads to the prospect of a rousing encounter to the best of their ability.

The winner will be right up there in the lightweight picture. Armstrong insists he can make the 135-pound limit for a crack at Bob Montgomery's New York commission crown, and added incentive to it all being that the National Boxing association also will recognize the winner of a bout between Montgomery and the survivor of Friday night's tilt as the undisputed title-holder.

A. A. U. Secretary Dan Ferris says track and field performers are sub-par this year.

PROVIDENT LOANS PLAN GEORGIA TRIP

Mansfield Provident Loan girls softball team still has drawing power, although it has yet to open its season for this year. Manager "Doc" Daugherty announced today the team will go to Rossville, Ga., June 17 for games on the 18th and 19th. The girls will stay in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Providents open their season Sunday at North Lake park, meeting Columbus Wilks Meats at 3 o'clock in a single game.

Bonds Sold on Star Auction

$124,000,000 Raised In Record War Rally.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK—(AP)—There's obviously a lot of the elephant in the sports fan in general and the baseball bug in particular, even when it hits him where he feels it most—in the B. R.

* * *

The B. R., naturally, is the bankroll, and the rubber band was peeled all the way off it yesterday as the faithful of all shapes and sizes—from corporations to just plain Gus—got together to "bid in" their favorite New York and Brooklyn ball players for just under $124,000,000 in the biggest one-day bond sale super-duper the treasury department has ever known.

The fellows who are over the peak now, but who'll always be the big guys to Gus Fan, got the hottest play in this "sale."

About 1,500 of the boys were on hand for the bond-selling stunt in which the successful bidder not only put cash on the line for the original "investment," but pledged the "upkeep" in bonds for his hero's performance the rest of the season.

And up on the block, getting the most attention as "auctioneer" Jimmy Walker worked, were the three top guys — King Carl Hubbell, Belting Bill Dickey and Dixie the Dasher Walker.

They were the "favorites" of their respective teams Dixie, the "people's cherce" in Brooklyn in spite of years of the front office "brush-off," drew the top bid of the day—$11,250,000—from the Brooklyn club, a social organization.

And Hubbell "went" for $8,000,000 after the representative of the Esso Marketers, which had already oversubscribed its scheduled allotment, "stalled" the bidding for a few minutes to call his home office and get an "okay" to go even higher for Old King Carl.

About the neatest gesture of all was a bid for $2,000,000, by a group who called themselves the "Bronx Syndicate," in order to get Dickey. It turned out they were just neighbors of Yankee Stadium.

Then there was the $3,000,000 bid for Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, the best-loved Dodger of them all, by Brooklyn Boro President John Cashmore, himself. Fat Freddy not only is just about to call it a career, but he wasn't even on the list of players to be auctioned.

All told, 37 players were "bid in"—a dozen each from the Yanks and Giants and 13 from the Bums (Fat Freddie is the extra). For each single a player makes the rest of the season, his sponsor agreed to buy a $2,500 bond; for each double a $5,000; for each triple, $7,500 and for a homer, $10,000. If he's a pitcher, a win calls for a $35,000 subscription and a shut-out for $50,000.

Rejects Protest On Dead Ball Use

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Because of an oversight on the part of Umpire George Pipgras, President William Harridge of the American league has rejected a protest by Detroit Manager Steve O'Neill against the use of a dead ball by the Athletics in the second game of a May 31 doubleheader at Philadelphia.

* * *

O'Neill discovered the dead ball in the eighth inning of a game won by the A's, 4-3.

* * *

Harridge said that because of Pipgras' oversight, both a dead and a live ball were used in both games. Both balls have been recognized as legal by the league.

Bivins Wins on Knockout

Stops Lloyd Marshall In 13th To Keep Title.

By LARRY SMITH

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Jimmy Bivins' left eye was closed today but he had a firm grasp on his duration light heavyweight championship.

Lloyd Marshall of California presumed to lift the crown from Cleveland Jimmy's head last night and took the full count in the 13th heat

A sneak right belted James and his dignity to the canvas for a two-count in the seventh and aroused a Bivins who usually exerts his talents just enough to win.

* * *

The title-holder pulled up his ring trousers and dropped the California Negro for counts of nine in the ninth and six in the 12th before delivering the payoff punch.

The bout might have ended one round sooner but the bell interrupted Referee Jackie Davis' enumerating in the 12th.

Marshall, at 164, spotted the Cleveland Negro 10 pounds and wasn't too far behind at the end of six stanzas — but that seventh-round right stirred an easy-going Bivins.

A crowd of 18,448 contributed $61,195 to witness the scheduled 15-rounder, Matchmaker Larry Atkins' first outdoor presentation of the season.

The word "duration" may be dropped from Jimmy's title after the war if he continues to slam opponents around the ring. The National Boxing association lists him as the logical contender for the 175-pound championship owned by Coast Guardsman Gus Lesnevich. The official light heavy king is reported to have gone up to 190 pounds since entering the service and may campaign among the heavyweights when he returns to civilian life.

Lulu Costantino, slick New York featherweight, knocked out Clevelander Joey Pirrone in the ninth frame of a scheduled 10-ins-Marshall engagement. Pirrone weighed 133, three pounds more than the New Yorker.

Featherweight Freddy Pope of Columbus came from behind to gain a six-round decision over New York's Ham Wiloby. Pope weighed 125, Wiloby 119.

Fitzy Fitzpatrick, 163, Cleveland, decisioned Johnny Lawer, 161, also of Cleveland, in another six-rounder. Bobby Richardson, 153, of Cleveland, bested Ernie Pelaia, 158, Beaver Falls, Pa., in the six-round opener.

RESOLUTION NO. 43-87

By Mr. Kyle.

Declaring it necessary to improve portions of Mansfield City streets described as follows: Being that portion of State Highway No. 202 which is Park Avenue West from Westpark Drive to Linden Road, that portion of State Highway No. 334 which is South Main Street from South Park Street to Lexington Avenue intersection and thence southwest on Lexington Avenue to the City corporation limits at Cook Road, that portion of State Highway No. 338 which is South Main Street from Lexington Avenue intersection to the City corporation limits, that portion of State Highway No. 114 which is Marion Avenue from Glessner Avenue to the corporation limits and Cline Avenue intersection. Said improvement shall be by resurfacing with asphalt together with necessary foundation repairs and also the widening and paving of street at intersection of Lexington Avenue and South Main Street as per plans now on file with the City Engineer.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MANSFIELD, STATE OF OHIO, Three-fourths of all members elected thereto concurring.

Section 1: That it is necessary to improve portion of State Highway No. 202 which is Park Avenue West from Westpark Drive to Linden Road, that portion of State Highway No. 334 which is South Main Street from South Park Street to Lexington Avenue intersection and thence southwest on Lexington to the City corporation limits at Cook Road, that portion of State Highway No. 338 which is South Main Street from Lexington Avenue intersection to the City corporation limits, that portion of State Highway No. 114 which is Marion Avenue from Glessner Avenue to the corporation limits and Cline Avenue intersection, by resurfacing with asphalt together with necessary foundation repairs and also the widening and paving of street at intersection of Lexington Avenue and South Main Street as per plans now on file with the City Engineer.

Section 2: That the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles of the proposed improvements heretofore prepared as here described and now on file in the office of the City Engineer, be and the same are hereby approved.

Section 3. That the total estimated cost of said improvements shall be $75,000.00 which includes servicing notices, interest, additions, engineering, interest on notes and bonds issued etc., as well as the improving work itself; and that of said total cost of improvement the sum of $44,000.00 shall be paid by the State and $31,000.00 inclusive of all preliminary contingencies and other incidental expenses including therein the cost of adjusting man-hole and water valve castings to grade shall be paid as the City portion of said improvement. In addition the City agrees to supply and pay for the necessary right-of-way for widening on State Highway No. 334.

Section 4: That of the total estimated City portion of improvement in the sum of $31,000.00, the sum of $12,100.00 shall be assessed by the benefit plan upon the lots and lands bounding and abutting the proposed improvement, which lots and lands are, hereby determined to be specially benefited by said improvements.

Section 5: That the assessments to be levied shall be paid in 3 annual installments with interest on the deferred payments at the same rates as shall be borne by the bonds issued in anticipation of the collection therefore; provided that the owners of any property assessed may at his option pay such assessment in cash within 30 days after passing of the assessing ordinance.

Section 6: That the bond of the City of Mansfield shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments in an amount equal thereto.

Section 7. That this resolution shall take effect and be in full force and effect from and after the earliest period allowable by law.

Passed June 7, 1943.

Signed HOWARD G. MILLER,
President of Council.

SALES DRIBLET DROPS MARKET BALANCE DOWN

Steel Tonnage Falls Off In Past Month, But Electric Furnace Output Doesn't.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Easier tendencies were evident in the stock market again today, driblets of selling tipping the balance downward.

Fractionally lower in a quiet opening were Texas Co., Union Carbide, Deere, Caterpillar Tractor and Western Union. Resistant were American Telephone and Goodyear.

Holders of steel shares noted that while electric furnace production during May set a new record, the industry's total tonnage for the month fell short of the peak. Output of 7,545,379 tons was, however, the largest for any May in history.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Grains opened steady today on reports Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) would endeavor to attach a rider preventing deductions of benefit payments in computing ceilings to the agricultural appropriations bill. The measure was expected to come up for debate in the senate today.

Wheat started unchanged to ⅛ higher, July $1.44¾-⅞, Sept $1.45-1.45⅛, and rye was unchanged to ⅛ lower, July 95⅝.

THEATERS

Undersea Film

Tyrone Power is starred, while Anne Baxter and Dana Andrews top the large cast used in filming 20th Century Fox's technicolor story of submarine warfare, "Crash Dive," now at the Ohio. Most of the action shots were taken at United States Navy Submarine base at New London, Conn. Members of the cast and student technicians spent several weeks at the giant base where technical adviser Commander M. K. Kirk-Patrick, U. S. N., put them through their paces aboard Uncle Sam's monsters of the deep. It is Power's last picture for duration. He is now on duty with the Marines.

"Hopalong" Rides again

"Hopalong" Cassidy rides again in "Undercover Man," the Paramount western now playing at the Madison. Bill Boyd is in his famous role as the cowboy sleuth. The picture's locale is along the Mexican border where a gang of outlaws have been raiding goldmines, rustling cattle, burning ranches, and causing as much trouble as a minor war. The Mexicans blame the American ranchers for all the trouble until Cassidy and his pals arrive to clear the situation. Lois Andrews is starred in the Madison's other attraction, "Dixie Dugan."

Cat People

"Cat People," RKO Radio's eerie screen romance, which opens tomorrow at the Park, brings an old world superstition up to date. The production has its setting in Manhattan and features Simone Simon, Kent Smith and Jane Randolph. Smith, a fashion artist, marries his assistant, Miss Simon. Smith discovers that she has a powerful superstitious belief that she is descended from the "Cat People," human beings who have the power to turn into an untamed panther whenever their jealousies are aroused. The Park's other picture is "Boston Blackie Goes Hollywood."

Miss V From Moscow

Featuring Lola Lane as a Russian spy working with the Loyal French forces in Paris against the Nazis, the P. R. C. picture, "Miss V From Moscow," opens today at the Ritz. Miss Lane is sent to Paris to impersonate a German spy who has been secretly killed, and whom she strongly resembles. There she matches wits with Noel Madison, a Gestapo agent, who is not convinced by her stolen credentials that she is the German spy. Coming to her aid is Howard Banks, a young American in the British service who is stranded on the French coast. They join forces and succeed in outsmarting the Nazis. "Truck Busters" is the co-attraction.

left her racks to churn up devastation in these and other targets.

"Every one of the crew has lavish praise for the ship which bears the insignia of a grinning, haloed, wing-sprouting cherub on roller skates with a big bomb flung over his shoulder."

Branham wrote that being dubbed "lucky" by other stations has "burned up" the crew.

"Her flying crew and ground staff just know their onions," they say.

There have been only two casualties among all the men who have flown with "Hell's Angels"—and they were lost while flying as substitute crew members in other bombers.

Folmer enlisted in the air force Oct. 10, 1940. He has been in England since Sept. 16, 1942.

He graduated in 1937, from Madison high school where he played football for four years. He was associated with his father in the filling station business before entering the service.

His wife, Doris, and a two-month-old daughter, who was born April 3—the day after her father's birthday, reside at Sulphur Springs, Crawford county.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Meets Monday—The Management committee of the USO will meet Monday at the War Chest office with Mrs. V. H. Lodde, chairman, in charge.

Committee Meets—The regular monthly meeting of the Richland Victory Civic committee will be held Friday evening at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Ask for Lights — Twenty-two property holders on Oakenwald avenue today petitioned city council for installation of street lights on the avenue. The petition probably will not be acted on by council until its July meeting.

Finds Daughter—Reported missing from her home in Olive Hill, Ky., Plurie Williams, 16, was found yesterday at the home of John Knipp, Walker's lake road, by city detectives and the girl's father, Talmage Williams. She was returned home last night.

Two Recruits — William Lloyd Finley, Ashland, and Gerald Thomas O'Leary, 48 Bahl avenue, are two recruits of the Mansfield navy recruiting station who have passed final examination and been sworn into the U. S. Naval Reserve in Cleveland.

Register for Sports Program—High school girls or recent graduates may register for the Blue Tri sports program Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Y. W. C. A. The program will open Wednesday, June 16 and will be held each Wednesday evening at Middle park and the Y. W. S. A. tennis courts

Named Supervisor—Miss Grace McCausland today had been named supervisor at the Richland county tuberculosis sanatorium by Dr. Oren A. Beatty, director of the institution. She succeeds Mrs. Isabel Wolfe. Miss McCausland formerly was employed at General hospital.

List Totals—Mansfield and Richland county housewives contributed 3,242 pounds of fats to the war program in May, it was reported today to Mayor W. J. Locke. The fats were purchased by G. A. Wintz and Son of Wapakoneta and will be used for making ammunition and explosives.

Arrested Here—Mansfield police last night arrested Arthur N. Ballard and Mrs. Molly Hart, colored, on warrants from Butler, Pa., charging them with the theft of clothing. Mrs. P. B. Triesch is the instructor.

Clinic Postponed—W. C. Mead, chairman of the Rotary club's committee in charge of crippled children's work, said today he had been advised that the clinic scheduled for June 18 at Elyria Memorial hospital had been postponed until July 2, due to the absence of Dr. C. H. Heyman, Cleveland specialist who conducts the clinics. Mead said numerous Mansfield parents take their children to these clinics and urged them to take notice of the change in date.

PANTELLERIA INVADED SAYS BRITISH PRESS

Italians Report Defenders Asked To Surrender; Axis Fears Mount.

expert on amphibious landings, that preparations for invasion are well advanced.

Rome in a broadcast today for the first time bluntly admitted:

"We expect landing operations."

A Berlin military spokesman, according to a dispatch received via Stockholm, expressed belief that the Allies may use 1,500,000 picked men to batter down the Nazi channel defenses.

There were manifest signs that the zero hour is approaching both on the European and Russian fronts and the British press, while confident that the Allied campaigns will succeed, warned that the United Nations must expect bitter fighting and heavy losses.

An Ankara dispatch to Reuters told of a rumor that Hitler has massed 70 divisions of troops—approximately 1,000,000 men—for a new attempt to take Moscow. A German offensive in Russia, according to the report, appears imminent.

New reports trickled into London of massive German preparations to establish defenses in depth along the whole North sea, channel and Atlantic coast lines. The Nazis are understood to be maintaining constant patrolling of the area with small warcraft and reconnaissance airplanes to guard against surprise attack.

London's man-in-the-street linked the new warning to the Axis by President Roosevelt against use of poison gas mainly with German threats to take severe reprisals against Britain for the devastating Royal Air Force bombings of the reich. Other observers felt that the American chief executive's warning probably was connected with Russian expectations that the Germans possibly might use gas on the eastern front.

Describe Cloud-Seat View of Attack

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

AT AN ADVANCED U. S. FIGHTER BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, June 8—(Delayed—(AP)—American airmen handing little Pantelleria a heavy bombing attack today also enjoyed a rare, cloud-seat view as British naval units pounded the same target from the sea.

American lightning pilots escorting Flying Fortresses said they got their biggest thrill watching the British warships pouring salvo after salvo into the rocky little Italian island between Tunisia and Sicily.

"We had a swell grandstand seat at more than 20,000 feet," said Lieut. Col. Troy Keith of San Jose, Calif., group commander.

"They were standing off shelling it when we got there. As soon as the B-17's we were escorting started unloading their bombs the war vessels turned en masse and steamed in until it looked like they were within a quarter mile of Pantelleria harbor and turned broadside.

"It was wonderfully timed and co-ordinated.

"We could see the red flashes of the warships' guns — there seemed to be a number of them, cruisers and destroyers.

"They were really cutting loose. Greyish smoke belched steadily from the deck guns as the ships circled to avoid being hit in return and fired at will.

"We couldn't see what they were shooting at because the whole end of the island was covered with heavy brown dust clouds raised by the Fortress bombs. You actually could see the earth shake when those bombs hit.

"While the navy ships circled, firing continually, our planes also were circled overhead to protect them from any surprise enemy attack."

Lampedusa Raid Described By British

VALLETTA, Malta —(AP)— A British naval communique today announced that "light surface forces carried out a coast reconnaissance of the island of Lampedusa" Sunday night and "suffered no damage or casualties."

Two members of a landing party failed to return, however.

This was the brief communique: "Our light surface forces carried out a coast reconnaissance of the island of Lampedusa June 6-7. They suffered no damage or casualties and only two of the landing party did not return."

This obviously was the same action described by Axis communiques yesterday as a determined attempt by about five companies of British commandos to take Lampedusa, tiny isolated island 70 miles off the Tunisian coast and 80 miles south of Pantelleria.

The Italian communique yesterday said a landing attempt was repulsed and several of the landing party's boats sunk.

The Germans said the parts of the detachment which succeeded in landing were wiped out.

Reports Pantelleria Rejects Ultimatum

(By Associated Press)

Axis broadcasts of a Rome communique said today the desperately resisting Italian garrison of Pantelleria had rejected or ignored Allied demands for surrender by last night—demands which ordinarily would be followed immediately by an amphibious attack if not complied with.

The Axis broadcasts failed to state, however, if the reported Allied demands had contained a direct threat of invasion.

The Allied headquarters communique today said the island fortress was heavily pounded again yesterday by British cruisers and destroyers—the sixth time in nine days that Allied warships have moved within range of the island's supposedly formidable coastal batteries to pour in their rounds of big shells.

The Allied communique said the warships accomplished "satisfactory" results without incurring any loss. At the same time Allied bombers poured on another deluge of bombs, both in day and night raids.

Traffic Expected To Use 30-N Grade Pavement July 1

the south lane of the paving this week and start on the other lane.

"Other than the weather, I know of nothing now that should hold up the work," the Ashland division engineer said. He predicted several weeks ago that the paving would be done by July 1, three weeks from tomorrow.

Work on the big job was started nearly a year and a half ago. Last fall the contractor applied for an extension of time for completion. The state highway department did not act on the request and won't until the job is done, Grimes said.

He added that the South Main-Lexington avenue widening and resurfacing job in Mansfield probably will be started before the end of July. The job will be advertised this month and let early next month, under state highway plans. The $74,000 job will be financed jointly by the city and state.

ALLIES READY FOR AXIS GAS

back and they'll probably get more than they give out."

It is known, Porter said, that Germany and Japan have large amounts of gases ready which are designed to attack the lungs, and others intended to blister and burn the skin. He added that American arsenals "can produce the same gases in almost unlimited quantities if the need arises and, moreover, our methods of protecting ou rown troops against enemy gases have kept apace with our production of these chemical weapons for offensive purposes."

Not only gas masks, but also salves and specially treated clothing have been developed.

Berlin Replies To FDR Warning On Gas

(By Associated Press)

Berlin officialdom took cognizance today of President Roosevelt's announcement of increasingly frequent reports of Axis preparations to use gas warfare and his warning of retaliation should it be used but attempted to pass them off as perhaps masking Allied designs.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, quoted so-called "authorized Berlin quarters," not otherwise identified, as asserting that the president's statement "showed nervousness prevailing among the Allies but perhaps also revealed a desire to procure beforehand an alibi for them in event of their entertaining such designs themselves."

The Berlin account ignored President Roosevelt's emphatic statement "that we shall under no circumstances resort to the use of such weapons unless they are first used by our enemies."

Red Planes Batter Bryansk-Orel Bases

MOSCOW — (INS) — The Red army air force was revealed today to have carried out a series of smashing raids on German airdromes in the Bryansk-Orel area while Nazi aircraft again attempted to blast the Soviet industrial center of Gorki on the Volga river 250 miles east of Moscow.

The land fighting continued on a comparatively minor scale with the heaviest action occurring on one sector of the central front and in the Lisichansk area of the Donets front where Russian and German troops battled for strategic riverbank positions.

Break Up Nazi Air Raid On Leningrad

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Russian fighter planes and anti-aircraft gunners were credited today with breaking up an attempt by a big force of German planes to bomb Leningrad, dispersing the fleet and destroying 27 raiders.

Junkers and Heinkel bombers escorted by Focke-Wulf and Messerschmitt fighters swarmed in strong force against the defenses of the old czarist capital, only to scatter and flee under the Soviet counter-blows.

Both the German and Russian air forces maintained widespread strategic attacks against respective offensive-defensive positions constituting the nerve centers of preparations for major operations aground.

19 Hospital Nurses Graduate

These 19 members of the Mansfield General hospital school of nursing received their diplomas last night at commencement exercises at St. Luke's Lutheran church. Principal speaker at the commencement exercises was Dr. Fred G. Carter, superintendent of St. Luke's hospital in Cleveland. Diplomas were presented by C. H. Huston, former common pleas judge. The girls are: Left to right, first row: Frances Smith, Jessie Truett, Muriel Boyer, Delores Richey and Betty Hopper. Second row, Jaunice Rein, Marian Myers, Eleanor Cole, Marjory Devor, Birdell Addelsperger. Third row, Rachel Woodward, Evelyn Knappenberger, Betty Geiser, Marjorie Watson, and Jean Logan. Back row, Florence Elliott, Elizabeth Pollay, Ruth Smith and Ruth Husong. Twelve of the graduates are Red Cross Student Reserve nurses.

W. J. Russell, Westinghouse Engineer, Takes Post In East

time expressed regret at the prospect of leaving Mansfield, where he has resided for the past 11 years. He and Mrs. Russell and their two sons, James and Donald, reside at 46 Wellington.

A native of Scotland—he was born in Edinburgh—Russell is a veteran of the first World war, having served with the Royal Field artillery of the British army. He has been associated with Westinghouse for 19 years, and with the Mansfield division for 11. He has been manager of appliance engineering since 1934.

Much of the company's development of new appliances and improvement of existing ones has come during the time Russell has been head of that division.

Russell said that Landers, Frary and Clark was engaged 100 per cent in war work, in all of its five factories.

J. H. Ashbaugh, present head of the Mansfield division, today announced that Russell's position would be filled by E. K. Clark, 836 Park avenue west, who has been in charge of the control section of appliance engineering. Clark has been with Westinghouse since 1922 and in appliance engineering since 1926.

Ashbaugh also announced the appointment of H. R. Cummins to the position of assistant manager of appliance engineering, a new position. Ashbaugh explained Cummins would act in a liaison capacity between the engineering and other departments.

Conservative buying is the general trend but the fact remains that most people seem to feel it's a "must" to use that first coupon before the deadline.

June 15 is the final date set for the final purchase of shoes on the No. 17 coupon. After that day, coupon No. 18 will be good for four months.

LONDON WAITS ALLIED MOVE IN MEDITERRANEAN

Expects Blow Soon With Sharp Increase In Air Attacks Over Germany.

been put on notice by Churchill that any attempt to get out of the war—such as suing for an armistice—will be rejected until Germany and Italy are trounced resoundingly.

The shape of things to come has been forecast clearly. Germany can anticipate a steadily heightening air bombardment as the summer progresses, probably rising toward a crescendo in the late summer or early autumn.

While it is believed that the German armies have been little affected by bombardment thus far—because of the natural delay in delivery of war materials from factory to front—the stringency will begin to be most noticeable before autumn.

Meanwhile, the Axis will be engaged along the vast Mediterranean and Balkan fronts. The Russian army may at any moment launch new attacks on the eastern front while in the west operations, the nature and variety of which remain a secret, were threatened by Churchill's statement that European theater activities will be co-ordinated closely with those in the Mediterranean.

This also may forecast appointment of an Allied supreme generalissimo whose main task would be to co-ordinate the far-flung battle forces. Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. army, is the chief candidate for that post.

Nazis Picture 'Invasion Battle'

LONDON — (U.P.) — The Daily Mail said today that German military authorities believe the Allies would need 1,500,000 troops attacking in waves of 50,000 to open a second front in western France.

The estimate was contained in a dispatch from Stockholm. The Germans were said to estimate that the first wave of 50,000 on the first day would suffer 74 per cent casualties, but could succeed in establishing a bridgehead 100 to 150 yards deep.

These forces on the second day might overcome the Germans' light defenses and, with the second wave try to overrun the heavier defenses 10 to 12 miles inland. The second wave, it was said, must count on 50 per cent casualties.

The Germans, meantime, would rush up reinforcements and the main battle would be joined on the third day.

Duce's Health Reported Worse

LONDON — (U.P.) — An Italian source today reported the receipt of underground advices that Premier Benito Mussolini's physical condition had deteriorated visibly in the last few months, forcing him into almost complete seclusion.

Attached to the fins of some of the larger fish will be numbered tags which will correspond to numbers held by several Mansfield merchants. Anglers 16 years old or under will be eligible for the prizes by catching the fish and taking the tags to the merchants who hold the corresponding numbers.

The fish will include black bass, catfish and crappies. The park lakes will be opened immediately after their release to boys and girls under 16 who may fish without licenses. Black bass may not be caught, however, until the regular season opens June 16. They must be thrown back until then.

Leo Yuncker, representing the Sportsmen's club, said the plan had been worked out to provide entertainment for the city's youth during the summer. Seven merchants had agreed today to give prizes and a number of others will be enrolled in the plan by the end of the week, Yuncker predicted.

this year but employes entitled to them will each receive pay for whatever vacation period he is entitled, Walker said. This is in line with the War Production board's recommendations to suspend vacations this year.

A severance pay clause is also in the new contract. Walker said the severance pay is based on the number of months worked since the departing employe's last vacation period. It applies to all employes leaving the company's employment for any reason, he said.

A clause prohibiting strikes, slow downs or "work stoppages of any kind" was agreed upon by the union, Walker added.

A female labor clause prohibits women from working more than 48 hours per week and the contract also protects seniority rights of employes in the armed services.

Both Walker and Wisdom praised "fellowship and co-operation" existing between company officials and the union."

THIRD MINE STRIKE LOOMS

Lewis Issues New Threat as Operators Report Talks Are Deadlocked.

have made no headway toward settling the months-long controversy which already has cost the nation 11,000,000 tons of coal.

Lewis described yesterday's proceedings as "farcical in every respect." Edward R. Burke, attorney for the southern operators, in reply to the "farce" charge, accused Lewis of consuming the time of the collective bargaining conference by holding a mock caucus of his negotiators in the presence of the operators.

In their telegram to the WLB, the operators were understood to have asked for further clarification of the board's May 25 directive which has formed the basis for contract negotiations during the past two weeks.

The board endorsed portal-to-portal (underground travel) pay for the miners; granted them $30 a year more in vacation allowances, and directed the mine owners to pay for the tools and other working equipment used by the miners.

The operators were said to have asked for clarification of the tool and equipment provision, inquiring as to whether it applied to part time tonnage workers or only to miners employed regularly on a day or monthly basis.

Portal pay has proved the chief stumbling block in the negotiations and the WLB previously promised to aid in finding a solution if the two parties could not come to terms. So far they have been unable to do so. Lewis has offered to compromise on $1.50 a day, while the operators offered 80 cents to $1.

Ickes Blames Steel Firm For Shutdown

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Solid Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes charged today that the shut down of one of Republic Steel corporation's blast furnaces at Birmingham, Ala., was the result of the company's failure to mine coal when it had a chance to do so and to maintain stock piles when coal was available.

Ickes instructed the corporation to operate its Alabama coal mines at full capacity on a six-day week basis until it has at least 60 days' coal in storage.

Ickes said in a telegram to C. M. White, Cleveland, O., Republic's vice president, that the "deplorable situation" was brought about because the company's coal mines worked only five days a week in Alabama, and the corporation's subsequent refusal to go on a six-day week until forced to do so by his order of May 4.

"The shutting down of one of your Birmingham blast furnaces was direct result of your failure to mine coal when you had opportunity to do so, and to maintain stock piles when coal was available," Ickes telegraphed.

MEXICO ENVOY REPORTS RIOTS

Los Angeles Out of Bounds For Sailors Following Zooter Disturbances.

the windows as the cars stopped to unload passengers. The gang fled when a police riot squad raced up with screaming sirens. A navy nurse was cut by flying glass.

Every available policeman and auxiliary policeman was on duty on the fifth night of battling between service men and the gaudily-garbed youths who frequent dark streets and amusement areas.

Sailors and soldiers, beaten and victimized by many of the overdressed gangsters, formed their own "police" squads to clean out the areas. The zoot suiters, ordinarily occupied with gang rivalry, banded together to battle the service men.

Arrests of long-haired hoodlums with ankle-choker pants were running more than 100 a day, and several voluntarily appeared at central jail asking to be locked up for protection.

Nearly all were Mexicans and Negroes. Sailors and soldiers made no attempt to identify their quarry. Anyone in a zoot suit was stripped of it. If he resisted, he was beaten.

Carrying knives and clubs, several gangs of zoot suiters waylaid sailors during the day, sending three to hospitals with cuts and contusions.

Four and five policemen covered every downtown street intersection. Roving "Black Marias" and two-way radio patrol cars cruised through the area breaking up wandering gangs of service men in whatever part of the city they were found. All juveniles were hustled from the streets and zoot suiters spotted by police before service men arrived were taken to jail for questioning and their own protection.

Rear Adm. D. W. Bagley, commanding officer of the 11th Naval district, who closed the city to naval personnel, said he did so as a precaution for the men "acting in self defense against this rowdy element."

Mayor Fletcher Bowron said he thought the out of bounds order was "a little severe." He promised every police effort to stamp out for good the hoodlum element.

Zoot suit gangs have been growing in size and audacity for the past two years, affecting the amply-cut suits with their advent and finally adopting them alm st as uniforms.

The gangs first contented themselves with rock throwing at each other, then graduated to clubs and knives. Several deaths resulted. Police attempting to intervene were assaulted and their patrol cars overturned. Girls in the "feminine auxiliaries" of the gangs are as tough as the youths themselves.

CLOTHES RATION DANGER FADES

WPB Doubles Amount of Wool That Can Go Into Fabrics For Civilians.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Prospects of avoiding clothing rationing brightened noticeably today with the war production board's decision to double the amount of wool that may go into civilian woolen and worsted fabrics.

Barring difficulties with manpower and machinery shortages, both described as "serious obstacles," WPB said that the improved wool supply picture guaranteed sufficient raw material to meet all essential civilian and military needs.

The clothing produced, moreover, will be warm and long-lasting, for WPB yesterday eliminated the provisions that made part of each manufacturer's wool supply contingent on his mixing the fiber with rayon, cotton or other substitutes.

It appeared that the textile situation had reversed itself, and that the rayon and cotton which WPB a year ago was urging manufacturers to blend into their fabrics to stretch the wool supply now appears likely to become scarcer than wool itself.

Some officials said there was virtually no danger of rationing this year and possibly not for the duration.

Unexpectedly heavy shipments of wool in munitions boats returning from Australia — a continent which appeared last spring likely to be lost to the Japanese, or at least cut off from shipping connections—and careful conservation of the domestic wool clip have boosted the raw wool stockpile to about 1,800,000,000 pounds, greater than ever before.

The Fighting Women of Winthrop Street!

This is Martha Davidson, 28 years old. Funny thing, but Martha wasn't very much stirred up by this war. It's true that most of the boys in the town had gone. She bought a bond a month and did without that second cup of coffee, but she wasn't fighting mad yet. She was still thinking more about herself than she was about her country.

Then Martha received an invitation to visit her Aunt Susan.

Aunt Susan lives in a big old house on Winthrop Street. By the second day of the visit, she decided it would be a good thing for peace-time Martha to meet the women — the fighting women, of Winthrop Street. "Come in your work clothes," they were told — and they did, and here are a few of them.

Betty drives a taxicab, starts work at eight A. M. Last year she seldom got up before nine, rarely missed an afternoon party. Mary Lou joined the WAAC when her husband joined the Army, and gets a terrific kick out of her work at the Army Post. Kay traded nursing for matrimony five years ago. Now she parks her three-year-old at the day nursery and is back at the hospital again as a Registered Nurse. And Aunt Susan herself is busy with meals, housework, sewing — and still gives a good many hours to Red Cross, Civilian Defense and her Victory Garden.

The men of Winthrop Street are either in the Service or busy at essential jobs. It's the women we're talking about! Every one of them who can, is doing a man's work at a full-time job. And you can be sure it gives them deep satisfaction to be doing their part in this war.

Here's Martha again! Back home, but she's caught the fighting spirit of those women of Winthrop Street. She went straight to the local branch of the U. S. Employment Service the day she returned, and now she has a full-time job behind a ticket window, filling a vacancy left by a man now in active war service.

There are lots more women who could do likewise! Are you by chance one?

The rest-pause that refreshes

Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work

WAR plant managers will tell you that anything that contributes to contented workers makes better workers. In plant after plant it has been found that a rest-pause breaks monotony, lessens tiredness and tension.

When you add refreshment to a rest-pause, you not only have a pause that rests, but refreshes, too. A moment for ice-cold Coca-Cola makes a rest-pause take on more meaning... promoting contentment that leads to more work and better work. Yes, contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

Close work brings the need to pause. Ice-cold Coca-Cola brings tingling refreshment to make any pause the pause that refreshes.

The best is always the better buy!

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things... a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 9, 1943.

Putting it another way, the war costs $5,000 every time you breathe—but there's nothing much you can do about it.

A commencement speaker advises youth to reverse the trend of its elders—and that's a post-war project that could be started almost any time now.

There's some doubt as to whether Governor Bricker is traveling around the country to boost his presidential candidacy or to learn how other governors reduce costs of operating state government.

Subsidies Will Hasten Inflation

RESORT to subsidies, in a last desperate effort to keep the growing inflationary trend from getting entirely out of bounds, seems to be the stubborn intent of the federal administration, despite warnings that this will hasten rather than retard inflation.

In an address last night, Herbert Hoover, former president and food administrator in World War I, urged consolidation of all authority over food production and distribution. He also advocated adoption of a plan for state, county and municipal administration of food production, along lines similar to those proposed locally and nationally by Louis Bromfield and other qualified authorities on farm problems.

Mr. Hoover also made a plea for increase in farm man power to levels higher than before the war and for additional farm machinery sufficient to handle increased acreage and necessary replacements.

The so-called "roll-back" of butter prices, by means of subsidy payments, with a similar subterfuge being planned for meat, coffee and some other commodities, does no more than admit failure of the administration's feeble attempt to stabilize prices to consumers without putting an effective ceiling on wages and farm prices.

It should not be disguised that any price "roll-backs" which are accomplished by subsidy payments out of public money actually places an extra burden on consumers, instead of being a saving, as the administrative costs of subsidy operation must be added to the payments themselves—and the entire amount must be met by taxpayers, who are also the consumers.

Long-Time Service Vs. Shifting

RECOGNITION of seven employes of the Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company who have been associated with that organization for twenty-five years, or more, merits mention and thought at a time when many people are shifting from one job to another—and then to another—for the sole purpose of temporarily "making more money."

Any careful reader will have no difficulty in calling to mind at least a few instances of persons who at one time or another received exceptionally large incomes but who died in respectable poverty or as public charges. While some national figures of one-time prominence are most likely to be the first to come to mind, the bounds of Mansfield need not be left to provide convincing examples of the fallacy of placing money first in considering attractiveness of employment.

Circumstances frequently justify changes in employment, with increasing efficiency often opening the way to greater advancement than seems possible in the organization with which the person is associated. While all such changes are matters for individual decision, good judgment demands that all elements be carefully weighed, with a view to future prospects rather than immediate higher wage or salary, before a decision is reached.

With so much emphasis being placed on the desire for "security," it is PERMANENCE of position, with increasing compensation based on value of services, that seems more likely to lead to security for old age, coupled with comfortable living and congenial employment, than shifting from one job to another every little while for more money, shorter hours, easier work, and the like.

It may be noted in passing, in an entirely impersonal way, that each of the seven employes honored by Lumbermens on the occasion of completion of from twenty-five to thirty years of employment with the company, is a home-owner; has lived comfortably through all these years; has thriftily acquired a surplus sufficient to give a much-desired feeling of security—and, incidentally, has been undisturbed by the furore over liquor rationing.

Commendation for Catlett

FRIENDS of John L. Catlett, Richland county representative in the state legislature, will be glad for the recognition accorded him by two Columbus political writers, by whom he is listed among "the most outstanding" members of the present legislature.

While it may be contended that no exceptional ability need have been evidenced to be "outstanding" in this legislature, it is nevertheless worthy of note that Catlett has displayed admirable honesty and common sense in his openly expressed attitude on a number of controversial matters before the legislature; that he has given earnest study to bills that were up for consideration, and that, as was said by the Columbus political writers, he was recognized as "one of the best speakers in debate on the floor."

Noteworthy also is that Catlett has consistently followed a course which indicated higher regard for promotion of the general welfare rather than acquiescence in demands of pressure groups or lobbyists for special privileges.

Having in mind numerous instances of young, and older, men whose will power and integrity were insufficient to withstand the temptations of Columbus politics, predictions are unsafe, but based on an estimate of his record thus far, it appears that Catlett has qualifications of honest thinking, sound judgment and good character which will continue to make him "outstanding" among Ohio legislators.

Unused Muscles Rebel

A PATIENT recovering from a broken wrist develops pains in strange places up and down the arm. "Unused muscle!" the doctor explains.

Victory gardeners are having much the same experience. They never knew they had so many muscles in calves or backs. Especially backs.

In the broken wrist these pains are favorable signs. So the gardener, straightening up and rubbing an aching muscle, can feel that even his groans are helping his country.

Charges Waste of Farm Labor

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Just as the OPA seems to be falling apart comes a blast from union labor sources criticising the whole food production program. The union labor attack is made by Donald Henderson, president of the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of America, a union which is part of the CIO, though it has never had as much publicity hitherto as most branches of that organization.

Its chief constructive proposal is for subsidies to be paid farmers for growing foods which are really needed. Its chief criticism is against the government's encouraging farmers to produce two crops which Henderson says are not needed, cotton and tobacco.

Incidentally, while Mr. Henderson was turning out his blast, congress was weakening visibly in its opposition to farm subsidies. It is not impossible by any means that congress will vote the administration this much desired power in the near future. It has been urged by the administration for some time not primarily because of the need for food, which is Mr. Henderson's chief point, but in order to prevent the rise in prices, which beyond doubt is also in Mr. Henderson's mind.

HENDERSON attacks the domination of the whole situation by the "farm bloc" and hits "business as usual" conditions in agriculture.

"Failure to adopt a full fledged system of subsidies, which are fought at every turn by the high-price farm bloc, throws a monkey wrench into food production at every step," Henderson alleges in urging action on Senator Harry M. Kilgore, chairman of the senate sub-committe on technological mobilization.

The most glaring example of failure to convert to war food production, the union attack declares, is continued use of men, machines and fertilizer on cotton and tobacco, of which there is currently a two-year supply on hand, indicating that unless we convert from non-essential crops, about 30 per cent or three billion of the estimated man hours spent in agriculture in 1943 (excluding livestock) will be wasted on cotton and tobacco.

"Our International Union," says Mr. Henderson in his letter to Senator Kilgore, "feels very keenly its responsibilities as the "Food for Victory" union in the trade union field. We urge that your committee immedaitely conduct an investigation, with public hearing, in the entire agricultural and food fields to arrive at a defensible war food program that will put an end once and for all to the 'business as usual' conditions which are undermining our war effort.

"The surplus of flaxseed and corn in the Argentine is being burned," says one of the documents sent to Senator Kilgore, "while we press our own farmers to increase their output of both these crops. Shipping space is wasted in carrying food from this country to North Africa and the Middle East, areas where we could produce enough food to support our armed forces and the people. Four fifths of the food supply of Hawaii is being shipped from this country, thus denying cargo space to war materials. Perhaps the most critical shipping waste is in the huge cargoes of nitrates sent from Chile to the U. S., where they are used to produce more cotton for the warehouses."

Timely Editorial

He Invented the Fly Swatter.

The old adage about building a better mousetrap was exemplified by B. F. Douglass, who died a few days ago at Fulton, Mo. Mr. Douglass, a former screen company head at St. Louis, conceived, in 1900, the idea of making a fly swatter out of a square of common wire screen on a handle.

Eagerly the population began swatting flies. Before the Douglass era, various clumsy devices had been used—whisks made of horsehair, folded newspapers, and the like. The defect of these was that the corporosity of a fly is very light, and the solid-faced swatter created air pressures in descending which seemed to whisk the fly out from under the sweeping doom in many instances.

The screen-wire swatter had the merit of letting the air through as it descended and the fly received no help in the form of a friendly boost to safety.

The result was that fly-swatting became a national pastime, and the mortality among the flies was terrific.—Kansas City Times.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL there's certainly some screwy thinking going on these days and old Dan Tobin, the boss of the Teamsters union, made a big contribution to it Monday.

Old Dan said that "congress ought to adjourn for a year and give President Roosevelt and the people who toil, a chance to win the war."

* * *

Now old Dan is as smart and as patriotic as the next fellow and he ought to know that when you boil a three-part government down to a two-part government or a one-part government you got something left we don't want.

* * *

It might be noted that the Reischstag took a long vacation but Hitler "and the people who toil" haven't won the war and we don't expect 'em to.

* * *

There were no breaks on Mussolini either and what did it get him "and the people who toil?" Just about what they should get for deserting government by legislative process for government by dictate.

* * *

The British have done all right without sending parliament on a bank holiday and we'll do all right too.

Thought for the day: Let's adjourn screwy thinking for a year.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Wild Strawberries

WILD STRAWBERRIES are ripe upon the slope above the house. The soil is rich from beggar weed legumes and forest leaves that blow down from the thicker woods above. Wet weather has been helpful. New patches have started in places where I never saw them grow before.

Perhaps finches or sparrows have distributed widely the seeds of many varieties. It may be that the dainty whitefoot mouse has made stores of akenes in protected bins and scattered some in transit. At any rate the net result of all these tiny creatures' seedings is not predictable.

Tall broad-leafed plants stand proudly and do not show, as yet, devastating rust spots or other leaf diseases. Beneath this thrifty growth is found the fruiting stem with a cluster of bloom or of small green berries, of a soft white kind, and sometimes those of deep and flaming scarlet.

Our boys gather them, in broad-bottomed pans, at near supper-time and wash them quickly at the cool flowing spring, then proudly bring them and watch mother spread the shortcake . . . until delicious scarlet juice from the partially crushed and sugared berries moves slowly down the sides of the tender biscuits and the yellow pitcher of creamy milk is set close by.

Often, just after daybreak, I enjoy to wander up where the berries grow. They are so delightful a part of the June morning, hiding there, dewy and cool, with the bloom still perfect upon them, that I hesitate in admiration before I pluck them from the stem, to smell and taste. But such strange sweet flavor is only for a single day. They must be eaten to be enjoyed in fullest measure.

I notice that flowers that will not pollinate themselves predominate. These must be fertilized by bees or there can be no fruit. It might be interesting to transplant to the garden some of the most promising plants, and observe their possibilities. For in this way our cultivated strains were found. A sweet, hardy small wild berry from the semi-arid west was crossed with a large, pulpy, insipid kind from South America and result was a good sized, sweet firm strawberry.

We planted five long rows of Premiers and Gibsons, several weeks ago. They have grown very rapidly. I pinched off the blooms, and now they are making runners. Next summer we shall not be dependent upon wild fruit alone,—although we shall hope always to make a few wild ones into preserves just for the delicious flavor.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Lewis's Injury to Labor Shown By Quick Congressional Reaction

WASHINGTON—Not many knew it, but during the early stages of the coal controversy, John L. Lewis received scores of telegrams from labor groups not affiliated with the miners, many of them rival CIO unions, lauding his stand in bucking the War Labor Board and the administration.

This was one of the things which spurred Lewis' fight, also caused Lewis' rival, CIO's Phil Murray, severe headaches.

But if those who wired Lewis could have sat in on the confidential session of the house military affairs committee when it considered the Smith-Connally bill, they might have had a different reaction. They would have seen the effect John L. Lewis's tactics had on congress and the irreparable harm he has done the labor movement.

Working like greased lightning, the military affairs committee approved the Smith-Connally Bill in record time. Sincere hard-working Chairman May gaveled it through with such speed that many members scarcely knew what was in it.

Several Republicans, very significantly, were much more friendly to labor than the Democrats. Southern congressmen were for going the limit. But Mrs. Clare Luce of Connecticut and LeRoy Johnson of California protested a good many of the drastic anti-labor provisions, and were the only committee members to reserve their decision to vote against the bill on the house floor.

Later when Assistant Secretary of War McCloy, most liberal executive in the war department, testified before the committee in opposition to the bill, the chief question thrown at him was regarding John L. Lewis. Congressmen wanted to know if some legislation such as the Smith-Connally bill was not needed to curb strikers of this kind. McCloy a genuine friend of labor, admitted that Lewis's action had weakened the war department's position.

One day after this hearing, the military affairs committee met for final consideration of the bill. It allotted from 10:30 a. m. to noon to rewriting it, rushed it to the floor at 12 o'clock sharp.

In other words in just one hour and a half, the safeguards labor had built up through two struggling decades, many of them with the help of F. D. Roosevelt, were gavelled out the window—largely because of the manner in which one labor leader, John L. Lewis, had put his interests before those of his country.

Surprised and Miffed.

WHEN the president announced the new Office of War Mobilization headed by ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes, it came as a complete surprise to Donald Nelson and Manpower Chief Paul McNutt. They knew nothing about the plans until the very last minute.

McNutt was definitely miffed that he was not appointed on the board and he let that fact be known. Another who was miffed was War Shipping Administrator Lew Douglas, who wanted Admiral Lewis of the Maritime Commission appointed with the idea that Douglas could sit in as substitute for him.

When White House advisers cogitated regarding the fact that some of the above officials had not been consulted in advance, it was pointed out that when Donald Nelson was appointed war production boss, it came as a complete surprise to Bill Knudsen. And when McNutt was appointed manpower chief, Sidney Hillman, then in charge of manpower, knew nothing about it until he read it in the newspapers.

"He who lives by the sword," quoth one White House adviser, "shall perish by the sword."

Senator Glass.

MUCH-LOVED 85-year old Senator Carter Glass of Virginia is expected by friends to drop out of the senate before many months. He has served as Woodrow Wilson's secretary of the treasury, 23 faithful years in the senate and 17 years in the house of representatives.

Virginia politicos close to Governor Darden are passing out the tip that when Glass retires, Darden will appoint as the senator's successor, not 55-year-old Congressman Cliff Woodrum, the most outstanding congressman from Virginia, but 73-year-old Congressman Tom Burch.

Governor Darden, who married Conny duPont, daughter of Irenee duPont, is pledged to serve his full term as governor of Virginia, and says he has no senatorial ambitions. But a lot of people think otherwise.

Learning Jap Language.

OFFICER candidate schools have a reputation for being tough, but the Naval Intelligence Japanese Language school at Boulder, Colo., sets a new record. Hand-picked candidates from colleges and graduate schools pore over Japanese "Kanji" (word pictures) 16 hours a day, 6 days a week, for 14 months.

These 800 students are given intimate high pressure instruction in classes of only 5 men each. The faculty consists of 150 Japanese-Americans, former professional and business men, recruited from the east and west coast Japanese colonies.

The course is intensive, and the students are given no job except the principal one of learning the difficult Japanese language. Unlike other officer candidates, they have no guard duty, KP, or night bivouacs. Their job is to learn Japanese, learn it quickly, and learn it well.

The identity of these men is a closely guarded secret, for if the Japs catch one of the U. S. Japanese students, the punishment is certain death.

Wanderlust Hits Ernie, Even In Africa, So He Makes a 13,000-Mile Flying Trip.

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA—During a lull in the Tunisian fighting I let the old wanderlust get the better of me as usual, and took myself a trip.

It was just a little trip—only 13,000 miles. If I'd thought to go in a different direction, I could have traveled from Tunisia to California and back to Tunisian again in the same direction. Yet all I did was fly around Africa.

The reason for the trip was two-fold — to get a breathing spell from the front, and to try to get warm. I hadn't been warm in nearly nine months, and one way to get warm is to go south.

So I went down to the tropics. I slept under mosquito netting, swam in the Gold Coast surf, bought ivory carvings in the Congo, watched native jungle dances, took after-lunch siestas, had my own houseboy and really lived the life of Reilly on my small world tour.

It wasn't entirely a vacation trip, for I wrote columns as I went along. So now I'll be telling you about the trip, and also how some of our American soldiers live in the other half of this vast and strange continent.

* * *

OUR TRIP took us over mountains, ocean, jungle and desert. It was a sort of pioneer version of peacetime traveling with Pan American Airways, except that it was all by army plane. We'd fly all day, go to bed early, and get up anywhere from 2:30 on for another early start.

You almost always take off before daylight, for distances are vast in Africa and you cover a lot of same in one day. Rolling out of bed at inuman hours gets to be almost normal for you after a while.

I remember one morning at a little jungle camp down in the Congo. We were sitting at a mess-hall bench eating breakfast. Our pilot, Capt. Johnie Warren of Columbia, S. C., was sitting next to me. We were both half asleep.

A faint dawn began to show in the sky. "Look," I said, "it's getting daylight."

Whereupon Captain Warren looked out the window, threw down his spoon, and said, "Aw shucks, that takes all the fun out of the take-off. Now we can see where we're going."

* * *

WE FLEW across the Saraha. We landed at little pinpoints populated by a lonely dozen or two Americans in khaki shorts, holding these far outposts that must be held by somebody.

The desert was stifling when we came down upon it, and each time we pitied the fellows stationed there, and were glad to leave and climb back into the cooler skies.

The Saraha is hard to see from the air, because the wind keeps a contant haze of sand hanging above it. After you've risen a couple of thousand feet you don't see anything.

For a long time I forced myself to stay awake and keep looking out the window, for fear I'd miss something interesting. But finally I gave up hope of seeing anything, and plunked myself upon an inviting stack of gray sacks piled along one side of the cabin.

And thus, cuddled down into a nice form-fitting nest, I slept most of the way across the Sahara Desert upon the United States mail.

I SHOULD have abandoned my long underwear and heavy uniform the day after starting. But I figured on the coolness of flying at high altitudes the following days, and left them on.

On the third day we were deep in the tropics. We stopped at a jungle field for lunch. It was hotter than hell. Most of the black natives were semi-naked. The whites were sitting around in a sort of boiling stupor. The sweat poured off us newcomers, and that woolen underwear began to wriggle. I felt as though somebody had poured hot gravy down my back.

And then the pilot decided to stay there overnight. We were assigned to barracks, and carried our luggage about a quarter of a mile to them through the blasting sun.

I flopped on my cot a few moments and shut my eyes, just long enough to roll over in my mind the deilghtful anticipation of the bath I was going to have.

In the tropics, bath water is never heated. It's just right without heating. The water came pouring out of the showers over me, and water has never felt so good.

Baths had been few and unsatisfactory for me during the past winter. But there in the tropics I washed and washed until I was weak from over-cleansing.

And then I put on summer underwear and thin khaki, abandoning long heavy underwear for the first time since last July. For a couple of hours I felt the way one feels after fever—light and floating and strange. But I felt good.

That transition from heavies to lights, from months of cringing against the cold, to the sudden freedom of true warmth, is an experience that sticks in your mind for weeks above the ordinary happenings of the days.

Liberia is where I became a sanitary human being again. Long live Liberia!

DISCOVERS NEW CLEANING AGENT

ATLANTA, Ga. —(INS)— Headquarters, Fourth Service Command reports a new cleaning agent being used by American fighting men around the world.

According to claims, the compound, known as a cleaning detergent, makes waters wetter, cleans without making a collection of insoluble suds and does the job quicker than ordinary soap.

Furthermore, this soapless soap which is made with a base of petroleum or coal tar, may be used in soft, alkaline or hard water and even in ocean salt water.

Working with water to form a penetrating solution, it rapidly reaches into the fibers of the clothing, removing greasy particles and dirt quickly and without danger of shrinking woolen fabrics, reports say.

Twenty-two guests were present for the shower. Bridge was played during the afternoon.

Winners were Mrs. L. D. Bower, Mrs. P. B. Pecht, and Mrs Stuart Cramer.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, June 10.

An extraordinary state of affairs, presenting openings for pushing to advanced goals of accomplishment and good fortune, is shown in this day's rule of major planets. This may be done with dynamic force, under pressure that might be deemed radical or revolutionary. It is probable that old plans, projects or labors may suddenly be accelerated under the impetus of sudden circumstances that might possibly come as unforeseen rewards for obligations dutifully and cheerfully recognized, for faithful services rendered, or good sound work of a stable and enduring quality. In any case it may be necessary to subdue a sense of frustration.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of extraordinary achievements or conquests, in which labors well performed, obligations nobly fulfilled, or fidelity in services unfalteringly rendered, may receive their just and equitable recognitions and rewards. There may be elements of surprise which may be considered revolutionary and unbelievable.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GOOD WORK WASTED

ONE OF THE most disappointing possibilities in the game develops when good work of one partner is wasted by the action of the man across the table from him. Nothing more emphatically emphasizes the partnership nature of bridge. What you do yourself can be of no value at all, on many occasions, unless your partner will carry through on his end. Or, as one exaggerating sage phrased it, "There is no such thing as a good bridge partner, but there is such a thing as a good bridge pair."

3 NT	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
6 NT

Reckoning that a heart lead probably would build a trick for North—in which he was correct—and that a spade might mess up the dummy's use of the diamond suit, a clear-thinking cardsman in the East, Dr. Louis Mark of Columbus, O., made the keen lead of his spade 3 on this deal of the individual masters' championship a couple of years ago. His partner of the moment has just disclosed how he wasted that good work.

After winning the opener with the spade K, the declarer led to his diamond K, then to the Q, whereupon West came in with his A and returned the spade J, to the A. The declarer then built a squeeze, running three club tops and then four more diamonds. As the last was played, the dummy also had the spade 7 and heart 6, and the closed hand the heart A-Q and club 7. When West discarded a heart to hold his club J—marking the heart K as with East—the club was thrown from North's hand and Dr. Mark was squeezed. He had to throw off either the spade Q, making the dummy's 7 good, or a heart from the K-8. This latter he did, but then the heart A dropped his K and Q got the last trick.

If Dr. Mark's partner had merely held up his diamond A to the third round and then led the spade J to the A, the squeeze would have been impossible. North could not have taken his three high clubs and then later returned to the dummy for the diamond run, as he would have had no more diamonds. So he would have had to score the diamonds first and then try the heart finesse, which would have lost to Dr. Mark's K, beating the contract.

What is the correct course of play by West at 3-No Trumps on this deal after North opens the spade Q?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'm sure it does mean the hour he wishes Olina to be at the bank," I said. "There is a faint line running from the word 'tomorrow' occurring in the sentence right after his request to go to the bank. Of course, the woman could be waiting at the hotel from that hour until Olina came, and a coded telephone from her to the traitor inside the bank could tell her when Olina had left the bank with the money."

"Then that is settled," my father said, rising, and obviously expecting me to get on with my errand. But I had another question, which I put hesitatingly

"Ruth Hayes does not know Olina, but she does know me," I said, and my father's interruption was quick and a bit impatient.

"She won't know you by the time Halloran gets through with you," he said, with a grim little smile. "You won't be so good-looking as a bent, hard-working chambermaid, Daughter, but your disguise will be most effective. And now, if you don't mind . . ."

The hunt was a command, and my heart sank to my boots at the assignment. I knew, however, there was no use protesting it.

But when I had been admitted to the Veritzen suite by Olina herself, and found her mother and stepfather seated in the living room, I found myself actually shivering as I returned their greetings and sat down in the chair Philip Veritzen put out for me.

Olga's clear, keen eyes swept my face. "Something serious is the matter, dear Madge," she said. "I can see it in your face. Tell us."

Her affectionate tone broke through my inhibitions, and I knew that in another second or two my story would come pouring out.

But first I looked at Olina "Have you had time to tell your parents about that note yet?" I asked and I saw the eyebrows of both Philip Veritzen and his regal wife arch in surprise.

"No, I haven't," she said. "They have just this minute come in. Won't you tell them about it, please?"

I have smiling acquiescence to her plea, and turning to Olga held out the note to her.

"Olina received this in your absence from a messenger who insisted that she must tell no one about it. But, suspecting something wrong about it, she brought it to me, as neither of you was here."

"A very proper procedure," Philip Veritzen said, as his wife finished reading the letter and handed it to him.

"But this is incredible," she exclaimed, "that Georges should write anything like this, or make so preposterous a request of Olina. And yet it is his handwriting."

Philip Veritzen looked up from the letter, and his eyes met mine with a comprehending gleam. I saw that my father had told him the story of Stephen Redfield's impersonation of Georges and forgery of the fugitive king's name, but that it had been kept from Olga and Olina.

"That is just the point of the whole thing," I said. "It is not his handwriting." And then, while refraining from naming Stephen Redfield, I told them of the carefully built up scheme to impersonate Georges and get his money.

"And they have dared," she said, "to attempt to make Olina their tool!"

"It was the height of insolence, certainly," I said slowly. "I trust you will not think my father is—"

Olina interrupted me with a little cry of delight.

"Oh! oh!" she cried. "Does he want me to pretend to go through with that errand so that he can trap those awful people?"

"Olina!" her mother said with imperious reproof. Then as she saw my face and eyes she put out her hand gropingly.

"Is that what your father wishes, my dear Madge?" she asked. "Tell me."

"Prelude in D Minor" and "May Night" were the selections played by Ann Sir Louis They are by Bach and Palmgren respectively. Gloria Morton played Rubenstein's "Romance," after which Helen Hagelbarger played "Rustles of Spring" by Sinding. Sibelius' "Romance" was presented by Janet Ackerman

Muriel and Gloria Morton played a duet entitled "Them From First Movement of Piano Concerto in A Minor" by Grieg as the closing number on the program, after Dolores Faust had played "Deep Purple" by Peter DeRose.

Mrs. Clingan is a certified member of the Ohio Music Teachers association She will next present Dolores Faust, June 30, in a recital Miss Faust will be assisted by Mrs. Bruce Rogers, well known Mansfield soprano.

Guild Meets In Church Parlors

Mrs. Gilbert Schneider and Mrs A B Snider were hostesses Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the St. Paul's Guild, held in the church parlors

Mrs. E. G. Pankow, president of the guild, gave the devotions, and spoke on the topic, "Our Flag and What It Stands For." Following the business session, contests were enjoyed. Prizes were won by Mrs Herman L. Gilbert and Mrs George Percy.

At a late hour, refreshments were served buffet style from a table with red and white appointments. The table was centered with an arrangement of red and white flowers and lighter tapers. Mrs. W. B. Linn poured

The next meeting will be held July 13 in the church parlors with Miss Florence Deppe and Mrs. K. A Donelson as hostesses.
